THIS SYMPOSIUM is dedicated to the idea that the truths of the gospel of Jesus Christ are better understood and, as a result, better lived when they are freely and frankly explored within the community of Saints.

WE RECOGNIZE that the search for things that are, have been, and are to be is a sifting process in which much chaff will have to be carefully inspected and threshed before the wheat can be harvested.

WE WELCOME the honest ponderings of Latter-day Saints and their friends and expect that everyone in attendance will approach every issue, no matter how difficult, with intelligence, respect, and good will.

2011 Utah SUNSTONE Symposium and Workshops

Theme: Mormon Artifacts and Material Culture

WORKSHOPS

We have a great selection of SUNSTONE WORKSHOPS this year! See pages 9-13 for details about this year’s EIGHT workshop offerings, their instructors, and registration information. Workshops require a separate registration fee. Onsite registration is available.

FINAL PROGRAM

This final program contains room assignments and a more complete list of this year’s Symposium participants.

SESSION PROCEEDINGS AND RECORDINGS

SYMPOSIUM PROCEEDINGS are not published. CD recordings of most sessions will be available for purchase on site as our audio team finishes editing and duplicating files. Check which CDs are available at the registration desk.

Audio order forms for individual sessions or a full set of recordings will be available at the Symposium, and session recordings can be downloaded from www.SUNSTONEMAGAZINE.COM following the event. It typically takes us several weeks to process and make the full Symposium CDs and downloads available for purchase. This year, SUNSTONE will also be videotaping selected sessions.

LOCATION: OGDEN

NOTE: SUNSTONE IS IN OGDEN, UTAH THIS YEAR!

The 2011 Sunstone Symposium will convene on the campus of Weber State University, located at 3848 Harrison Blvd, Ogden, UT, between 40th and 36th Streets.

All scheduled sessions will be in the J. Farrell Shepherd Student Union Building, located at the heart of campus. Follow Dixon Drive north/left to parking lot A2, and walk south to the Student Union.

Campus maps available here: www.weber.edu/weberstatemap/ and on page 47 of this program.

SYMPOSIUM REGISTRATION

ADMISSION TO ALL SESSIONS is by purchased ticket or symposium name badge only, available at the registration table. Advance registrations may be purchased by mail, via email, on the Sunstone website, or by calling 801-355-5926.

Visit the onsite registration desk on the third floor Mezzanine to purchase full registration, one-day tickets, single session tickets for day or evening sessions, workshop registrations, or banquet tickets.

LOGISTICS

PARKING INFORMATION

Parking for Symposium attendees is available free of charge in lot A2 on weekdays and weekends (north of the Student Union) and in lot A10 on Saturday only (south of the Student Union).

Enter campus at the intersection of University Circle and Harrison Blvd and follow the roundabout so you are heading north on Dixon Drive. As the road curves east, it becomes Edvalson Street. Follow Edvalson east; the road curves just before you get to the entrance to parking lot A2.

The closest handicapped parking is in the parking lot (PPL) just south of the Shepherd Student Union. There is no charge for parking if you have state-issued handicapped tags/placards.

For additional details about parking lot locations and campus roads, please refer to the campus map on page 47 of this program.

WSU DORMS/HOUSING

Guests who have booked lodging on campus during the symposium can check in at Promontory Tower between 9:00 am and 3:00 pm for both Promontory Towers and the University Village apartments south of campus.

Guests checking in after 3:00 pm can call 801-510-9796 to reach WSU’s on-call staff who will check them into their rooms.

Promontory Tower is located at the south end of campus across from the athletic field. Enter campus from Harrison Blvd at the 3950 South intersection, follow Dixon Drive south to the roundabout, and continue south/parallel to Harrison. The road will curve around the athletic field and become 4100 South. Promontory Tower will be on the right. For additional details about roads and building locations, refer to the campus map on page 47 of this program.

WSU MEAL PLANS

If you pre-ordered a breakfast plan, lunch plan, or a combo breakfast & lunch plan through WSU, you will be able to pick up your meal in the second floor dining area (by the convenience store) starting at 9:00 am for breakfast and 12:30 pm for lunch.

ONSITE CHILD CARE AT WSU

Pre-registered children ages 2-9 can attend onsite child care during the afternoon sessions (2:00-6:00 pm) Thursday, Friday, and Saturday. Child care is provided through the Non-Traditional Student Center on the 3rd floor of the Shepherd Student Union Building. Parents, please pick up your child(ren) promptly at 6:00 pm. We are also providing a parents room—SU 312—for DIY child care/breaks.
TRANSPORTATION

DOWNTOWN/CAMPUS TRANSPORTATION:
Sunstone has arranged to have WSU Transportation provide shuttle bus service between downtown Ogden and WSU campus. The WSU shuttle will stop at the Ben Lomond Hotel on Washington Blvd and 25th Street downtown, at the Ogden FrontRunner station, and at WSU campus (pick up and drop off in front of the Browning Center just south of the Student Union). Shuttle service is available:

WEDNESDAY August 3
1:00 - 3:00 pm Lunch Break
6:00 - 8:00 pm Dinner Break
9:30 -11:30 pm End of Day

THURSDAY August 4 and FRIDAY August 5
8:30 - 10:30 am Opening
12:30 - 2:30 pm Lunch Break
6:00 - 8:00 pm Dinner Break
9:00 -11:00 pm End of Day

SATURDAY August 6
8:30 - 10:30 am Opening
12:30 - 2:30 pm Lunch Break
6:00 - 8:00 pm Dinner Break
8:00 -10:00 pm End of Day

SLC AIRPORT/OGDEN and OGDEN/SLC AIRPORT:

If you need transportation between Salt Lake International Airport and Ogden—especially on Sunday when there is no public transportation running—we’ve made arrangements with a local shuttle company to provide transportation service August 3-7, 2011.

To make a reservation on a shared shuttle, contact CITY EXPRESS TRANSPORTATION at 866-385-2489, visit WWW.AIRPORTEXPRESSUTAH.COM to fill out and submit a reservation form online, or contact the City Express manager, AMIR@CITYEXPRESSTRANSPORTATION.COM.

The cost is $45 per person each direction on a shared shuttle. NOTE: Shuttle reservations MUST be made AT LEAST 24 HOURS IN ADVANCE. Otherwise the $45 negotiated price will not apply.

Since there are several public transportation options between Salt Lake City and WSU available weekdays, including FrontRunner commuter train service and UTA express buses, we encourage attendees to use public transit whenever possible.

Find information on FrontRunner commuter train schedules here: http://www.rideuta.com/ridinguta/routes/routefinder.aspx?r=750

S chassis:
KINGSBURY, STEVE MAYFIELD, LOREELEE QUIST, CAMI THORNOCK, JAKE ZOLLINGER, and ushers KAI DEMANDANTE, CARLENE GEORGE, and SCOTT GRANER.

Music: We are pleased once again to have ALAN EASTMAN at the piano and welcome new musical director KIM MCCALL.

Board: The Sunstone Board of Directors is a valuable ally in every Symposium. A warm thank you to board chair MICHAEL J. STEVENS and directors JOANNA BROOKS, LAURA COMP-TON, DOE DAUGHTREY, JOHN P. DEHLIN, BILL HANSEN, DAVID KING LANDRITH, J. FREDERICK (TOBY) PINGREE, MARK D. THOMAS, MATT THURSTON, KAIMIPOKO WENGER, CLAY WHIPKEY, and DAN WOTHERSPOON.

Venue: We’re thrilled with the service provided by Weber State University, which accommodated us when we were forced to relocate. We’re especially grateful for the support of CHAD MOSHER and other members of the Weber State events staff.

Vendors: Please be sure to visit the book room, art exhibit, balloon sculptures, and other vendor displays in Ballroom C.

Presenters. We’re excited to have both new and returning presenters on this year’s program. We hope your presentations go well and that you’ll enjoy being part of the conversations at Sunstone. We value your participation and hope you continue to join us as presenters and symposium attendees.

Special Recognition: Warm thanks to an ANONYMOUS DONOR for $500 toward registration discounts for students.

We also thank contributors who put $5,100 into this year’s Matching Funds Grants: STIRLING ADAMS, D. JEFF BURTON, REBECCA ENGLAND, JORDAN KIMBALL, MORRIS and DAWN THURSTON, DUDLEY WELKER, and an ANONYMOUS DONOR. We appreciate your fundraising support!

OF NOTE

PROGRAM. Sunstone offers a diverse selection of topics, formats, and perspectives. Hear views that coincide with yours and presentations with a different perspective. As Elder Hugh B. Brown told BYU students in 1958, “I have mentioned freedom to express your thoughts, but I caution you that your thoughts must meet competition in the marketplace of thought, and in that competition truth will emerge triumphant. Only error needs fear freedom of expression.”

2012 SYMPOSIUM THEME. In 2012, we invite proposals focused on Mormons and Mormonism as a Political Force. Think beyond senators, governors, and candidates for president. Ask yourself: how do Mormons deliberately try to shape the social fabric that covers us all? How do they cooperate—among themselves and with others—to get what they want? What is the political and social fallout when Mormons organize, canvass, and vote in order to make an entire state or country “choose the right”? How do Mormons exemplify the feminist adage that “the personal is political”? In short, how do Mormons exercise, submit to, challenge, and understand power? (And can you really be both Republican and a good Mormon?)

It’s personal. It’s political. It’s Mormon. It’s Sunstone 2012.
SESSION CHANGES

The following sessions have been changed from the preliminary program:

SESSIONS ADDED—

215. PANEL. SISTER WIVES GO TO COURT
KAIMIPO (KAIMI) WENGER, CHERYL L. BRUNO, BEN WINSLOW, AND DEWAYNE HAFEN

MATTHEW BOWMAN

356. PAPER. THE SOCIAL AND ECONOMIC TEACHINGS OF MORMONISM: SOCIAL JUSTICE IS ALIVE AND WELL
WARNER WOODWORTH

366. PANEL. CHOOSE THE RIGHT—BUT WHICH IS RIGHT? MORMONS AND IMMIGRATION

SESSIONS MOVED TO NEW TIME SLOTS—

115. PAPER. MARK HOFMANN: 25 YEARS LATER
moved to session 125

253. PAPER. PASSIVE AGGRESSION AMONG THE LATTER-DAY SAINTS: EVIDENCE FROM THE WASATCH FRONT
moved to session 351

325. PANEL. THE FORBIDDEN FRUIT IS MEAT? AN INTERPRETATION OF THE TREE OF THE KNOWLEDGE OF GOOD AND EVIL
moved to session 364

351. PAPER. JON MCNAUGHTON, MORMON ARTIST/RIGHT-WING PROPAGANDIST
moved to session 346

364. PANEL. HOMEMAKING RADICALISM AND HOMEMAKING REALITIES
moved to session 325

FOR YEARS, Sunstone has cultivated independent thought and spiritual exploration in Mormonism. During that time, thousands of people—you and I included—have been spiritually and intellectually nourished by thought-provoking SUNSTONE articles and spiritually invigorating symposium presentations. There is no doubt that Sunstone makes life in Mormonism deeper, richer, and more rewarding.

Sunstone supporters STIRLING ADAMS, DUDLEY WELKER, MORRIS and DAWN THURSTON, D. JEFF BURTON, JORDAN KIMBALL, REBECCA ENGLAND, and an ANONYMOUS donor have generously volunteered to help carry on Sunstone’s legacy by matching up to $5,100 of the donations received in August—so any amount you donate during August 2011 will be doubled.

Though Sunstone does charge for subscriptions and symposium registrations, these fees cover only direct publication and event costs. The rest of our annual budget relies solely on the support of those who have benefitted from Sunstone and who want to nurture it for Mormonism’s future seekers.

If you’re looking for donation ideas, check out the Giving Tree in the lobby and purchase a few decorations, or visit with Michael Stevens to talk about how you can make Sunstone a part of your estate planning. As always, your donations to Sunstone are fully tax-deductible.

THANK YOU!

Afterparty

Join fellow Symposium-goers for snacks & lively discussion of your favorite 2011 sessions at the home of Mary Ellen Robertson and Michael J. Stevens:

1522 East 33rd Street, Ogden UT 84404.

We're a few blocks from WSU. Take Harrison Blvd north, turn right on 32nd Street, then right onto Taylor, then left on 33rd St. 801-791-4766 after the Fall as a consequence of the curse—a curse not on the people but on the ground.

Christ’s teachings redeem us from the effects of the Fall and renew in us the potential for the ideal relationship God intended for us. Jesus directly addresses the mistaken beliefs that woman’s role is limited to that of childbearer, housekeeper, and sexual partner. He also addresses the burdens on men, particularly the striving for power, status, and authority.

We also look at the Apostle Paul’s instructions to the entire Christian household—husbands, wives, parents, children, masters, and slaves—in Ephesians 5 and 6. Paul replaces the culturally mandated patriarchy with the injunction for mutual submission, respect, and love, and in so doing, changed the world.

Africans find many cultural challenges in this systematic reading of the Bible. American Latter-day Saints may also find it challenging, refreshing, and liberating. Whether you are married or single, this workshop will enrich your interpersonal relationships, understanding of the worldly roots of gender norms, and appreciation for other people, male or female.

Instructor

CARRIE MILES, PhD, is a senior scholar in residence at Chapman University in Orange, CA. As executive director of Empower International Ministries, she travels regularly to Africa. She is the author of The Redemption of Love and New Man, New Woman, New Life and a chapter entitled, “‘What’s Love Got to Do with It?’: Earthy Experience of Celestial Marriage, Past and Present” in the recently published Modern Polygamy in the United States (Jacobson and Burton, eds).

W-2. Title TAMING AND UNLEASHING THE BIBLE: AN INTRODUCTION TO ACADEMIC BIBLICAL STUDIES with JARED ANDERSON

Description

The interpretation of the Bible presents, among other things, a legacy of domesticating older traditions so that scripture supports established views. This workshop will demonstrate how the Latter-day Saint approach to the Bible fits into this tradition and investigate the unique dynamics that come with revealed additional scripture, including the LDS commitment to the KJV. Within this framework, using a multi-media presentation, we will explore an overview of the Bible from a historical and academic perspective.

Three segments will cover: 1) the Jewish Scriptures (Old Testament), 2) the New Testament, and 3) the history of the Bible. For each of the testaments, I will outline the history of the formation of these texts and their cultural context, as well as introduce key themes such as the rise of monotheism in the Old Testament period and pseudepigraphy in the New Paul J. Toscano represents debtors in bankruptcy court, one of the most stressful and least lucrative areas of legal practice. He stumbled into it through a combination of ignorance, idealism, and a penchant for lost causes, which are among the reasons he is offering a workshop on a subject quite removed from the concerns of rational people—namely, Joseph Smith's reflections on angels and gods.

Paul remains deeply enthralled by Mormon theology; it's what drew him to Mormonism and back out. This interest spawned his co-authorship with Margaret Toscano of Strangers in Paradox and also provoked him to write "Whether There Be One God or Many," "Emptying the Fullness of the Priesthood," an Epistle of Paul to the Mormons: Homosexual Spirituality and the Redemption of Pleasure, and The Sanctity of Dissent and The Sacrament of Doubt. He cannot stop theologizing and believes that by grappling with Joseph Smith's myths of gods and angels, Mormons may better understand themselves, their values, their hopes and fears, their assumptions, aspirations, expectations, and predispositions, as well as the forces that shape the Restoration, the Church, the nation, and the world.

MORNING WORKSHOPS, 9:30 AM–1:00 PM

W-3. Title LOSING OUR RELIGION: MORMONISM'S VANISHING CHRISTOLOGY
with PAUL J. TOSCANO

Description In an effort to project a respectable world image and to align itself with the Protestant Christian right, the LDS Church has eliminated from its public discourse many of the unique contributions of Mormon doctrine. By covering its heterodoxy with a mask of orthodoxy, the LDS Church risks the loss of its own identity, its traditions, its doxy and praxis, and its reason for being.

This workshop will administer an antidote to amnesia in an effort to salvage the Mormon concept of salvation. Participants will revisit Joseph Smith's complex Christology, examine his mostly-ignored angelology, and explore his disparate and often conflicting statements on the number, nature, and names of the personages of the Godhead. The goal is to retrieve and foreground the principal features of Mormon theology that distinguish it from its rivals—features once familiar to most Latter-day Saints but fast disappearing from the Church's public discourse in recent decades and, increasingly, from the private consciousness of its members.

Instructor JARED ANDERSON is completing a PhD at the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill. His dissertation, a project that investigates the intricacies of stylistic analysis, as well as source and textual criticism, will reconstruct and analyze the form of the Gospel of Mark used by the author of Matthew. His primary research interests explore the history of the Bible—how it was formed, transmitted, and translated. He is also deeply involved in general issues of spirituality and religion in our day of technological and cultural transformations.

Jared has taken courses with top scholars at UNC and Duke in literature, culture, and languages relating to the New Testament and Hebrew Bible. An award-winning teacher at UNC, he taught the New Testament, Hebrew Bible, and Birth of Christianity. He currently teaches World Religions at Westminster College.

W-4. Title A CRISIS OF FAITH AND ATTACHMENT INJURIES IN AN LDS MARRIAGE with ADAM FISHER

Description Psychologist John Bowlby wrote that all human beings need safe emotional connections with key others "from the cradle to the grave." Without this security, a crisis of faith can lead to the end of an LDS marriage. Spouses who stay in the Church may feel betrayed at a time when they need safety the most: the dream of eternal marriage unraveling. Spouses who leave may feel personally rejected in a time of great loss, fear, confusion, or instability.

In addition to the issues above, this workshop will address the following: 1) Attachment theory as the science of adult love, 2) How a couple may get caught in a spiraling dance of hurt, blame, and disconnection around a crisis of faith, 3) How a crisis of faith and other relevant issues for couples and Mormonism can actually cause a type of trauma known as an "attachment injury," and 4) How to slow down the negative cycle in the relationship and heal these deeper violations of human connection.

Instructor ADAM FISHER is a doctoral student and associate instructor in counseling psychology at Indiana University, specializing in relationship education, sexuality, and evidence-based treatments for couples and families. He has a master's degree in counseling from Gonzaga University and has completed counseling internships in a variety of settings including LDS Family Services and Catholic Charities. Adam has been happily married for seven years and has two children.

W-5. Title SPIRITUAL AWAKENING: KNOWING GOD AND SELF THROUGH SELF-INQUIRY AND MEDITATION
with PHILIP G. MCLEMORE

Description Spiritual awakening results from direct experience and knowledge of one’s own spiritual nature or essence of being and the presence and nature of God. For most people, a sense of self and God evolves from indirect forms of knowing such as beliefs, social and cultural conditioning, and the limited perceptions and processes of the human body and mind. Partial, limited knowledge of self and God can lead to dissatisfaction, suffering, and misuse of the objects, life forms, and people in our lives. Self-inquiry and meditation are two highly effective spiritual disciplines designed to open to us the expansive and joyful world of direct knowing and spiritual awakening.

Self-inquiry is an ancient method of using the mind, through a series of probing questions, to determine what one is not. Self-inquiry helps an individual cut through layers of false or limited perceptions and approach a deeper understanding of self once the non-self has been subtracted. Meditation is a discipline designed to take one beyond the limitations of body and mind to direct experience and knowledge of self and God.

In this workshop, you will learn and practice the process of self-inquiry as well as the philosophy, principles, and techniques for establishing or deepening a fruitful meditation practice. You will also experience guided meditations designed to open the domain of spiritual perception that leads to spiritual awakening.

Instructor PHILIP G. MCLEMORE is the former LDS Institute of Religion Director at Auburn University and the University of Georgia. He also served for 20 years as an Air Force chaplain, retiring in 2004. Since then, he has worked as a hospice chaplain and meditation instructor. Philip has been trained by world-renowned meditation masters and is an expert in a variety of yogic disciplines and contemplative prayer. Philip has published two essays in SUNSTONE, “Mormon Mantras” and “The Yoga of Christ,” and has another essay, “The Mystery and Romance of Spiritual Awakening,” forthcoming. Philip has four married children, ten grandchildren, and lives with his wife, Kim, and their family of dogs, rabbits, and chickens.

W-6. Title OUR RICH MEETINGHOUSE HERITAGE: AN OGDEN TOUR OF LDS ARCHITECTURE with JONATHAN KLAND

Description Studies of LDS architecture generally focus on temples, ignoring the richness of our meetinghouse heritage. Although contemporary meetinghouses are typically patterned on only a few pragmatic designs, older meetinghouses are frequently very beautiful and highly unique when compared not only to churches in other religions but also to each other. They also serve as an interesting commentary on the growth and development of the Church—particularly in a survey of which buildings have been retained and which have been sold.

Northern Utah, not surprisingly, has an abundance of architecturally significant LDS buildings. In Ogden alone, eleven chapels built prior to 1930 are still standing. However, only two of these are still owned by the LDS church. Additionally, Ogden has several unique, interesting mid-century chapels pre-dating Correlation. This workshop will offer a tour of the most significant of these beautiful buildings in the greater Ogden area. Information presented will highlight the history and significance of each building, exterior and interior design features and detailing, and, as available, a review of plans and photos.

Instructor JONATHAN KLAND has a BS in construction management from BYU and an MA in architecture from the University of Florida. From 2008 to 2010, he was an architect for the LDS Church, where he designed a Middle Eastern meetinghouse for Abu Dhabi and developed a new series of Standard Plan meetinghouses for the US/Canada. Called the Independence, this plan includes eight versions, each of which is constructed in linked components, allowing for easy expansion to a larger phase as needed. The first of these is currently under construction adjacent to the Kansas City Temple.
Jonathan has blogged as Green Mormon Architect, is a LEED-accredited professional, a technical expert in building information modeling, and currently works for the Army Corps of Engineers. In the past several years, he has begun researching meetinghouses around the country in an effort to compile records of our significant architectural heritage. His blog documenting and celebrating outstanding Mormon architecture is LDSARCHITECTURE.WORDPRESS.COM.

NOTE  Tour participants will meet the instructor at the Sunstone registration desk on the third floor Mezzanine and carpool to various Ogden chapels and meetinghouses.

W-7.  Title  POWERFUL CLINICAL TOOLS FOR A RICH, JOYFUL INTELLECTUAL AND SPIRITUAL LIFE AFTER TRADITIONAL MORMONISM
with RULON EAMES

Description  Latter-day Saints who begin to wake up to the rich universe beyond mainstream Mormonism often find themselves trapped for years in painful intellectual and emotional conflict. Repeatedly rehashing historical, doctrinal, and Church governance issues with like-minded Mormons can seem to afford a kind of relief. However, there is a growing awareness among experts on the human mind that finding answers requires a leap to modes of thought and experience very different from the logical systems that caused the problems in the first place. Scientists at such Western institutions as the Harvard Mind/Body Medical Institute are now actively exchanging insights with the Dalai Lama and other Eastern spiritual teachers. Leading clinical psychologists are listening to this dialogue and fashioning powerful new therapeutic tools. This workshop introduces participants to some of these potent clinical methodologies. Come prepared to have all of your assumptions about the nature of reality turned upside down in a way that opens a path to healing.

Instructor  RULON EAMES understands the pain of religious crisis and the many obstacles on the path to healing. Before leaving a career in the LDS Church Educational System, Rulon completed a master’s degree in biblical studies and continued post-graduate training in religious studies and mental health counseling. As an active-duty chaplain in the US Air Force, he enjoyed a rich dialogue with leaders from many religious traditions. He credits the remarkable Jesuit psychologist Anthony de Mello with key insights that guided him on his own successful healing journey. Rulon is currently a licensed counselor practicing in Ogden, UT. He welcomes your experiences and insights at edcon10@yahoo.com.

W-8.  Title  ESSENTIAL OILS: EXPANDING AWARENESS OF PERSONAL AND FAMILY HEALTH CARE
with JULIE SWENSON

Description  Essential oils are a natural and effective way to address health concerns, bring relaxation or rejuvenation, and encourage a feeling of well-being, both physically and emotionally. Essential oils have been used since ancient times in many cultures around the world. They are beginning to be recognized in this country in places such as Vanderbilt Hospital for their remarkable properties, as well as being used in individual homes. Essential oils are easy to use and bring a sense of self-reliance in caring for our bodies, minds, and environments. Come enjoy a fun and informative class that expands your awareness of the purposes of the beautiful plants God has given us for increased health and vitality.

During this session, participants will:
• Learn what essential oils are.
• Discover how essential oils can address physical and emotional concerns.
• Understand different methods for using essential oils.
• Understand essential oil safety guidelines.
• Feel confident in using essential oils.

Instructor JULIE SWENSON has a bachelor’s degree from BYU in health promotion and is a licensed massage therapist. She has worked in the field of natural health for 14 years with her own massage and energy work practice. She has been studying, using, and educating others about essential oils for several years. She loves using essential oils in her practice and with her family of six.

Lecture MATERIAL CHRISTIANITY: CREATING A RELIGIOUS WORLD OF THINGS

Speaker DR. COLLEEN MCDANELL is a professor of history and the Sterling M. McMurrin Professor of Religious Studies at the University of Utah and is one of the foremost experts on religion in the United States. Her book Material Christianity urges scholars to look at the "stuff" of religion for new evidence on how people live their faith.

Abstract This illustrated lecture demonstrates how the study of things and spaces sheds light on the religious experiences of the people in the pew. During the past half-century, an important shift occurred in the study of history. Influenced by the Civil Rights and the Women’s Liberation movements, scholars moved beyond simply studying the written documents of the educated and famous. Within religious history, the focus of research became the practices of the people rather than the ideas of the elite.

In order to get at this "underside of history," scholars looked beyond the written word to the world of things and spaces. Material culture studies evolved to pull information out of objects, art, landscapes, and architecture. How does an ordinary object become holy, sacred, special? What are some of the ways that Christians have manipulated the material world to create and maintain their spiritual visions? How does material culture function within religious communities? Why are Americans, in particular, wedded to the physical expressions of their faith? This lecture will provide a theoretical foundation for addressing Mormon religious practices by using material culture.

Closing song “Carry On” (Words and music on handout)

Benediction To be announced.

Devotional, 9:00 AM–9:30 AM

101. Devotional DARE WE QUESTION SCRIPTURE?

Presenter DALE E. LUFFMAN is the ecumenical and interfaith officer of the Community of Christ and serves in the Council of Twelve Apostles. Dr. Luffman is responsible for theological education and development ministries and for special missionary projects for Community of Christ. He also serves as a faculty member for Community of Christ Seminary. He holds a doctor of ministry degree from Pittsburgh Theological Seminary and a master’s of theology degree from Princeton Theology Seminary.

Abstract In this devotional, we will consider 2 Nephi 5:30 (CoC) / 2 Nephi 6:12 (LDS) and focus on a responsible interpretation of this significantly prejudicial text in the Book of Mormon.

Concurrent Sessions, 9:45 AM–10:45 AM

111. Paper WHY DO WOMEN FIGHT AGAINST THEIR OWN INTERESTS?

Presenter GEORGIA PLATTS holds a PhD in sociology from UCLA and teaches sociology and women’s studies at Foothill College. She has a blog, BROADBLOGS, is a Ms. Blogger, and volunteers with the anti-poverty group RESULTS.

Abstract This presentation considers why, along with other underprivileged groups, Mormon women so often fight against their own interests. The answer emerges from sociological theory, which explains that society ends up shaping the very thoughts in our minds so that the world as it is seems natural and normal, the end result being that many of us accept it without question. In particular, the belief that God wants inequality strengthens adherence to inequality.

112. Paper CIRCUMSCRIBING MEANING: MEDIATING RELIGIOUS EXPERIENCE

Presenter BARRY LAGA, PhD, is a professor of English at Mesa State College, Grand Junction, CO, where he teaches American literature, literary theory, and cultural studies.

Abstract The LDS Church often patrols or limits the proliferation of meaning by using paratexts, “verbal frames,” or “symbolic packages.” In “The Loss of the Creature,” Walker Percy discusses the way this “general surrender of the horizon to those experts within whose competence a particular segment of the horizon is thought to lie” amounts to a loss of sovereignty, a loss of openness, thus rendering us a “consumer of a prepared experience.” Percy’s observation makes a great deal of sense, especially in the context of religious experience. This presentation will explore the way our experiences are mediated by images and texts, including synopses at the beginning of scripture chapters, images in Ensign articles, placards next to Church art displays, and information kiosks at Church historical sites and monuments.

Chair HOLLY WELKER

113. Paper DUAL PAPER SESSION: WHAT LDS HYMNS REALLY SAY TO, FOR, AND ABOUT US

Paper 1 DEGENDERING HYMNS

Presenter CHARLENE DURHAM has been an educator since serving simultaneously as president of Future Teachers of America and a Primary teacher while in high school. She currently works with the Department of Veterans Affairs.

Abstract We participate in worship through congregational singing—and many LDS hymns use language that acknowledges the hims in the congregation but not the hers. In this respect, are hymns a measure of Church doctrine? At Christmas, do we seek only “Peace on earth, good will to men”? What about the sisters when I offer to “divide my gifts from thee with every brother that I see who has the need of help from me”? Is the male generic still intended to include every human being? Was “he” ever intended as inclusive?

Chair JOE GEISNER

Room SU 316

114. Paper WHAT I LEARNED FROM EDITING GENTRY

Presenter TODD COMPTON is co-author with Leland Gentry of Fire and Sword: A History of the Latter-day Saints in Northern Missouri, 1836-1839 and is currently researching a biography of Indian missionary Jacob Hamblin. To earn his daily bread, he works with computers in a law firm.

Abstract While editing and updating Leland Gentry’s superb 1965 PhD dissertation on the Mormon War in Missouri, I kept Gentry’s text largely intact but included addenda at the end of each chapter. In these, I considered: the background of the phrase “nits make lice” in Indian massacres, showing demonization of minorities in Jacksonian America; whether Joseph Smith had been formally initiated as a Danite; whether Smith was a moving force or curiously passive in Missouri; politics as a cause of the war; and how leading Mormons almost rejected American law in 1838, an attitude leading to further theocratic actions in Nauvoo and Utah.

Chair JOE GEISNER

Room SU 316

115. Paper “FURTHER LIGHT AND KNOWLEDGE”: WAYS OF KNOWING IN MORMONISM AND THE NEW SPIRITUALITY

Presenter DOE DAUGHTREY is a PhD candidate in religious studies at Arizona State University. Her specialty is religion in the Americas with an emphasis on the New Spirituality, religion and popular culture, and the gendered experience of religion.

Abstract This paper analyzes esoteric ways of knowing in Mormonism to illuminate how particular LDS women have synthesized, supplemented, or replaced Mormonism with elements of twenty-first century New Spirituality. The New Spirituality is the current generalized spiritual milieu in the United States: dynamic, competitive, flexible, and... hybrid—an inclusive category that can cover the wide range of non-institutional options available to Americans for spiritual self-expression as well as innovative theological trends in institutional religions. It can represent what Americans once considered New Age practices and ideas such as astrology, reincarnation, channeling, and divination (the belief in and use of which are diffuse in American culture). It can also refer to what has become a revitalization of established religious traditions in America toward a progressive, more humanistic spirituality.

Chair JAKE ZOLLINGER

CONCURRENT SESSIONS, 11:00 AM–12:30 PM

121. Panel AROUND THE TABLE: INCREASING UNITY AND COMMUNITY AMONG MORMON WOMEN

Abstract How can Mormon women who care about gender issues transcend cultural tensions that hamper positive change? In January 2011, The Round Table launched a conversation about Mormon women’s identity among representatives of various organizations. In their panel presentation, participants will highlight the tangible and intangible products of their separate and combined projects and discuss what the results of their endeavors signify about Mormon experience. Emphasis will be placed on troubleshooting issues that complicate community among Mormon women. This session will be aired via podcast as part of the ongoing Round Table conversation.

Moderator EMILY WARBURTON JENSEN writes, edits, and mothers five children, often simultaneously. She has a BA in journalism from Utah State University and is a Mormon Times Bloggernacle columnist.

Panelists LISA BUTTERWORTH founded the website FEMINISTMORMONHOUSEWIVES.ORG in 2004 to be a supportive community where people can discuss any topic of interest to feminists, Mormons, housewives, and pretty much anyone else.

SAREN EYRE LOOSLI has a BA from Wellesley College, an MEd from Harvard University, and is co-founder of The Power of Moms, an organization dedicated to helping mothers learn from each other.

NEYLAN MCBAINE is a graduate of Yale University. Her writing has appeared in Newsweek, Dialogue, Segullah, The Washington Post, and other publications. She is the author of How to Be a Twenty-First Century Pioneer Woman and the founder and editor-in-chief of The Mormon Women Project.

KATHRYN LYNARD SOPER is a writer, editor, and mother of seven. A BYU graduate (English, 1993), she is the author of The Year My Son and I Were Born: A Story of Down Syndrome, Motherhood, and Self-Discovery, has edited four published anthologies, and contributes to Mormon forums from Meridian Magazine to SUNSTONE.

CHELSÉA SHIELDS STRAYER lives with her family in Baltimore and is working on a PhD in biological and cultural anthropology at Boston University. She has researched the physiology of indigenous healing, religion, and rituals of the Asante in Ghana. A co-creator of LDS WAVE, she writes its “Ask a Feminist” column.

Moderator D. JEFF BURTON is the author of For Those Who Wonder and the “Braving the Borderlands” column in SUNSTONE magazine.

Panelists BRAD CARMACK is in his last year of the JD/MPA program at BYU. He majored in biology, performed clerk assignments for Justice Joel Horton of the Idaho Supreme Court, and regularly participates in USGA (Understanding Same Gender Attraction), an unsponsored BYU student talk group.

MARY ELLEN ROBERTSON is the director of outreach and symposia at SUNSTONE. She has BAs in journalism and English from BYU and an MA in women’s studies in religion from Claremont Graduate University. She was the first Mormon woman to earn a degree in the CGU women’s studies in religion program and wrote her thesis on Mormon women’s history.

JEFFREY V. THROCKMORTON is a long-time supporter of SUNSTONE. He works in administration at the University of Utah and is currently a board member of the American Board of Industrial Hygienists and the national chair of the Local Sections Council of the American Industrial Hygiene Association.

DAN WOTHERSPOON, PhD, served as editor of SUNSTONE and executive director of the Sunstone Education Foundation from 2001 to 2008. The host of the Mormon Matters podcast, he also conducts interviews for episodes of the Mormon Stories podcast.

122. Panel SUCCESS IN THE BORDERLANDS

Abstract All of us in the Borderlands of the Church must eventually face the issues of: when, to whom, and how to disclose our situation. Past studies suggest that almost all Borderlanders are in the closet to some extent and that a large share have not told their spouses the whole story. A panel of “experts” will share their experiences with “coming out.” We will then invite members of the audience to share their experiences and to ask questions of the panel.

Moderator D. JEFF BURTON is the author of For Those Who Wonder and the “Braving the Borderlands” column in SUNSTONE magazine.

MARY ELLEN ROBERTSON is the director of outreach and symposia at SUNSTONE. She has BAs in journalism and English from BYU and an MA in women’s studies in religion from Claremont Graduate University. She was the first Mormon woman to earn a degree in the CGU women’s studies in religion program and wrote her thesis on Mormon women’s history.

JEFFREY V. THROCKMORTON is a long-time supporter of SUNSTONE. He works in administration at the University of Utah and is currently a board member of the American Board of Industrial Hygienists and the national chair of the Local Sections Council of the American Industrial Hygiene Association.

DAN WOTHERSPOON, PhD, served as editor of SUNSTONE and executive director of the Sunstone Education Foundation from 2001 to 2008. The host of the Mormon Matters podcast, he also conducts interviews for episodes of the Mormon Stories podcast.

Room SU 321
Panel 123. MORMONISM, DESIRE, AND POPULAR ROMANCE: CONSTRUCTIONS OF GENDER, RELATIONSHIPS, AND POWER

Abstract Romantic fiction comprises 25% of books sold in the US; its readers represent a diverse group. Popularity notwithstanding, the genre is regularly challenged as trashy and prurient and for reinforcing the limitations of traditional gender roles. This panel will examine what the themes, trends, and traits of the genre and its readership help reveal about Mormons and their culture: What connections exist between female desire and Mormon women’s claiming priesthood and voice? How do romance characters and plots provide insight into both male and female Mormon gender roles? Why do Mormon women consume these “soft porn” works of fiction?

Moderator/Panelist AMELIA PARKIN received an MA in English from the University of Virginia and works in academic publishing. She has blogged at THE-EXponent.COM since its inception in 2006 and recently joined the panel for the podcast Daughters of Mormonism.

Panelists CAROLINE KLINE is a graduate of Scripps College with an MA in classics from UC Santa Barbara. She is the co-founder of THE-EXponent.COM and began the PhD program in women’s studies in religion at Claremont Graduate University in 2010.

MARGARET TOSCANO is an assistant professor of classics at the University of Utah; she has been on the board of the Mormon Women’s Forum since its inception in 1988. She has published widely on the topic of Mormon feminism.

Panel 124. ONE OF THE FIVE WISE VIRGINS ON A DATE WITH THE PRODIGAL SON

Abstract Sparks fly—sensual and spiritual collide, alluding to the forbidden, insinuating a route to the secret and the hidden in all of us, rallying the spirit. Love poetry can walk this line and do it openly and unashamedly, claiming our deepest affections, healing our contradictions, inducing us to laugh and cry at our fears. Come hear sexy, funny, and provocative work from four LDS poets, some of whom are anthologized in Fire in the Pasture: 21st Century Mormon Poets.

Moderator/Panelist PAUL SWENSON is a journalist and poet whose second book of poems, In Sleep and other poems, will be published later this year by Dream Garden Press, Salt Lake City.

Panelists TYLER CHADWICK is pursuing a PhD in English at Idaho State University. His poems have appeared in an array of literary journals. He’s also editor of Fire in the Pasture: 21st Century Mormon Poets.

Room SU 404 B

Panel 125. MARK HOFMANN: 25 YEARS LATER

Presenter STEVEN L. MAYFIELD has a BS in police science from Weber State University. He has worked in the Salt Lake City police department crime lab as a technician since 1994. He is also SUNSTONE’s staff photographer.

Abstract More than 25 years have passed since Mark Hofmann’s bombings and murders exposed his Mormon and Americana documents as forgeries. This presentation will discuss: 1) what has occurred in the story since Hofmann went to prison; 2) the discovery of additional Hofmann forgeries or possible forgeries; and 3) the impact of Hofmann’s forgeries and crimes on Mormon and American history and research. A major portion of the presentation will be the playing of a recently discovered tape recording made by Hofmann in 1981 of telephone conversations between him and authorities of the then RLDS church (now Community of Christ) over negotiations of the sale or trade of the “Joseph Smith III blessing” document.

Respondent BRENT ASHWORTH is a semi-retired attorney living in Provo, owner of B. Ashworth bookstore in Provo. He collects Hofmann memorabilia and was a victim of Hofmann’s forgeries. He is the prior owner of the recorded phone call featured in this session.

Presenter DAI NEWMAN has a BA in religion and culture from the University of Utah and will pursue an MA in religion this fall at Syracuse University. He is fascinated by the interplay between popular culture and religion and by the commercialization of faith. He also plays a lot of board games.

Abstract Board games by and for Mormons have found significant commercial success over the past 25 years. One genre that has seen various iterations is the trivia game. These games highlight what is considered Mormon culture and what a Mormon might be expected to know. This paper considers the content and nature of the questions of older (Celestial Pursuit) and more recent trivia games (3P2K or Hold to the Rod). In doing so, it explores some ways Mormon popular culture has shifted during the last few decades.

NOTE: Session attendees will have the chance to win Mormon game door prizes: Settlers of Caanan, and Righteous: A Book of Mormon DVD Game. The drawing winners will be announced at the end of the session.

Presenter HILLARY LAGA is a senior at BYU majoring in anthropology and women’s studies.

Abstract The term “ancestor worship” usually invokes images of people slaughtering a chicken on a grave, offering supplications to a sun-worn picture on a mantel, or repeatedly bowing towards a statue. Surprisingly, Mormonism exhibits some strong elements of what people might consider “ancestor worship.” From an anthropological point of view, I will explore how Mormonism challenges our traditional notions of both kinship and ancestral worship; I will also consider important ethical implications. Blurring the definition of kinship and expanding the view of ancestors by imagining all people as our brothers and sisters can help shape ethical codes by creating a level of responsibility and respect between those we don’t even know. It’s difficult to shirk responsibility and ignore other people’s needs, whether dead or alive, if we imagine them as our own siblings.

143. Paper THE HOLLOW WORLD OF CYRUS TEDD
Presenter STEVEN L. RICHARDSON has worked in geology, cartography, and engineering. For the past few years, he has been perfecting the technology for 3D anaglyphic maps with his son Ben.

Abstract In 1869, God called Dr. Teed, a US Civil War veteran and doctor who dabbled in alchemy, to be a messiah who would turn people to Christ. Renamed Koresh, Teed began a prophetic mission. His most interesting teaching is that the earth is round—but it’s also hollow, and we’re on the inside. It’s a strange belief now, but in the 1880s...it was plausible. However, as sciences advanced, Koresh’s hollow world began to implode. The histories of Koreshanity and Mormonism follow a parallel course to the martyrdom of their prophets and beyond.

Presenter LLOYD S. PENDLETON took the lead in 2004 in writing and implementing Utah’s Ten-Year Plan for ending chronic homelessness. In 2006, Lloyd was appointed director of Utah’s Homeless Task Force. A graduate of BYU, he holds a BA in political science and an MBA.

Abstract Standing at the intersection is a shabby woman holding a cardboard sign begging for help. She stares straight at you in despair. On the street, a scruffy man pushing a loaded shopping cart asks for your spare change. What do you do? Do you give? Do you ignore? Do you reflect, ‘I donated at Christmas time…isn’t that enough?’ Many of us encounter the dispossessed and become ethically or spiritually uneasy, not knowing how best to help. Presenter JACOB BAKER is a PhD student in philosophy of religion and theology at Claremont Graduate University where he is writing a dissertation on philosophical universalism, New World Baroque theory, and the intellectual thought of Joseph Smith.

Abstract Alma 14 in the Book of Mormon narrates a tale that appears patently absurd if not utterly atrocious: a prophet has power from God to stop the burning of defenseless women and children but is explicitly told by God not to intervene to save them. Mormons normally offer trite explanations for this story or dismiss it completely as ludicrous. How are we to productively interpret a seemingly absurd scripture passage like this in ways that are not simplistic, insensitive, incredible, or obscene?

151. Paper PAPER. “I AM A MORMON” AND “I AM A SCIENTOLOGIST”: RECENT MARKETING EFFORTS IN MORMONISM AND SCIENTOLOGY
Presenter DONALD WESTBROOK is a PhD student in the School of Religion at Claremont Graduate University. He holds an MA in theology from Fuller Seminary and BA in philosophy from UC Berkeley.

Abstract In addition to being uniquely American religious movements, the LDS Church and Church of Scientology were founded by individuals who perceived themselves as offering a unique theological or spiritual corrective. Joseph Smith re-established the one true Christian church, and L. Ron Hubbard’s techniques of dianetics and Scientology put forth a spiritual view of humans that challenged the materialism of modern psychology and psychiatry. This presentation offers a comparative analysis and critique of recent marketing efforts by both churches to introduce the public to ordinary Mormons and Scientologists via the “I am a Mormon” (HTTP://MORMON.ORG/PEOPLE/) and “I am a Scientist” (HTTP://WWW.SCIENTOLOGY.ORG/) campaigns.

152. Paper “PROPHET” AS ARTIFACT AND MATERIAL CULTURE
Presenter STEVEN L. SHIELDS has written on Latter Day Saint history and beliefs for more than 30 years. He is the author of Divergent Paths of the Restoration and has served in various full-time roles with the Community of Christ since 1987.
Abstract

This paper considers the experiences, ministry, prophetic work, and church groups started by three different but related twentieth-century prophets in lesser-known Latter Day Saint denominations. Otto Fetting, Thomas B. Nerren, and William A. Draves each claimed and produced messages reportedly given by a resurrected John the Baptist. None claimed to be “a prophet,” nor did their respective church organizations institutionalize a person or office of “prophet.” However, each functioned in the prophetic role, and with the death of each, the messages ceased and the original church groups foundered. Latter Day Saint church groups that have prospered, on the other hand, tended to focus on the prophetic office, as distinct from the person and any reported messages, often institutionalizing the “prophet” as both spiritual and administrative leader. As both artifact and material culture, “prophet” is an essential ingredient of the Latter Day Saint movement and is central to the community of the church.

153. Paper: PRACTICING STEWARDSHIP IN A CONSUMER CULTURE

Presenter: RACHEL MABEY WHIPPLE is an eco-Mormon housewife, mother, student, reader, and occasional artist. She has a bachelor’s degree in geology and is currently studying philosophy and anthropology at BYU. She also blogs at LDSearthstewardship.org.

Abstract: As our testimony of the gospel gives meaning and motivation to our relations with other people, so too our sense of divinely appointed stewardship informs all of our interactions with the material world, both manufactured and naturally created. We must strive to live as responsible stewards, making prudent use of resources, cultivating abundance in our own spheres of influence to provide for our families and to bless others. I will review the theological underpinnings of an LDS environmental ethic and discuss practical steps Mormons can take in their own homes that are consistent with both the gospel and green living.

154. Paper: MORMONISM AND THE PROSPERITY GOSPEL

Presenter: JOHN LARSEN holds a BA from BYU in linguistics and an MBA from Weber State University. John is the director of the Mormon Express podcast.

Abstract: The Prosperity Gospel is the Christian belief that God wants to reward his followers with material prosperity and wealth. This philosophy continues to rise in prominence among many Christian adherents following its foundation in the latter half of the twentieth century. I compare this theology with similar strains of thought in the Mormon paradigm and review Mormon theological ideas and practices in light of Mormon culture, teachings, and practices.

161. Panel MORMONS AND MATERNAL CULTURE

Abstract Motherhood and homemaking receive a lot of lip service within Mormon culture, but when women use the Internet (and other venues) to descant on their lived experience with this noble calling, people do not hesitate to ridicule domestic minutiae, sneer at discussions of poop, and condescend to crafters. This reaction to the nuts-and-bolts of child-rearing and homemaking reveals the true misogyny behind the pretty flattery. Our panelists will discuss traditional female material culture, including cooking, housecleaning, nurturing, gardening, and crafting, and the ways in which women are “othered” both for embracing these womanly roles or for rejecting them.

Moderator/Panelist LISA BUTTERWORTH is founder of the blog FeministMormonHousewives.org and blogs between teaching dance and yoga, nagging her kids to practice the piano, and cooking potatoes for her family of five in Boise, ID.

Panelists JOANNA BROOKS is chair of the department of English and Comparative Literature at San Diego State University. A national voice on progressive Mormonism, she is a regular columnist at ReligionDispatches.org and maintains the “Ask Mormon Girl” advice column at fMh.

NIKKI MATTHEWS HUNTER blogs at fMh and loves reading, teaching, quilting, and gardening. She and her husband, John, enjoy a rural lifestyle in the small town of Emmett, ID, where they are raising six children and other livestock.

SHELAH MASTNY MINER started licking beaters at her mother’s elbow and has been baking ever since. An MFA student in BYU’s creative writing program, she blogs at fMh, writes for the Mormon Women Project, and edits features for Segullah.

LINDSAY HANSEN PARK is married to a handsom Idaho farm boy; they live in Stansbury Park, UT, with their sons. She works for BuzzFoto and Getty Images, owns and operates a small private preschool out of her home, and has co-founded a humanitarian group, Utah for Congo.

162. Panel EMBODYING GENDER: HOW MORMON MATERIAL CULTURE REFLECTS AND SHAPES GENDER PERCEPTIONS

Abstract Mormonism defines both gender and embodiment as fundamental. Beliefs about gender are embodied in the physical objects, resources, spaces, and structures which Mormons create and use to carry out the work and life of the Church. Mormon material culture not only reflects gender beliefs but also influences the ways in which gender is perceived. This panel will explore the many ways in which gender shapes and is shaped by the Church’s material culture. We will look at the relationship of gender to Mormon images and objects, meetings, social relationships and activities, food, weddings, funerals, and the temple.

Moderator JANICE ALLRED is a writer on theological topics and author of God the Mother and Other Theological Essays; she is also president of the Mormon Women’s Forum.

Panelists VICKIE EASTMAN has a BA in English from Stanford University. She is a frequent participant on SUNSTONE panels dealing with Mormon culture, a retired freelance executive recruiter, and gospel doctrine teacher in her ward.

AMELIA PARKIN received an MA in English from the University of Virginia and now works in academic publishing. She has blogged at The-Exponent.com since its inception in 2006 and recently joined the panel for the podcast Daughters of Mormonism.

LONG-HAIRED PREACHERS COME OUT EVERY NIGHT: MORMONISM’S ROLE IN THE JOE HILL CASE

Abstract
The state of Utah executed labor songwriter Joe Hill ninety-five years ago. While there is no evidence that Church leadership played any direct part in the case, interesting questions arise in three areas where the Joe Hill case intersects with Mormon history and Mormon players in the trial. How did the Utah Supreme Court favor the Church and its leaders? What was Heber C. Kimball’s son doing on the Joe Hill jury? Why did an impressive anti-Mormon rant get Joe Hill’s lawyer disbarred? The presentation will explore these questions and includes photographs and several of Joe Hill’s songs.

MILLENNIAL MENTALITY AND RELIGIOUS RELEVANCE

Abstract
Millennials, the generation born after 1981, are raised to be doubters and seekers. In The Book of Mormon musical, millennials missionary Elder Price notes that Mormons “cannot believe part way; you have to believe it all.” Eventually he concludes that he cannot believe either part way or at all—but he can retain his status as a Latter-day Saint because he values the community.

However, many millennials reject both LDS belief and community, leaving the Church at a rumored rate of 80%. This panel discusses the situations that make both belief and belonging impossible for many millennials.

Panel  PARODY NEVER FAILETH: THE ROLE OF HUMOR, SATIRE, AND KITSCH IN MORMON CULTURE

Opening song  “Let Us All Press On” hymn parody from Music and the Broken Word

Invocation  To be announced.

Abstract  Mormons love a good laugh—and sometimes are willing to laugh at themselves. Join us for a light-hearted and light-minded Thursday evening plenary session wherein we will enjoy a closer look at the amusing, the humorous, and the absurd in Mormon creations. We will examine Jana Riess’s Twible project, a slide show featuring LOLcats with a Mormony twist, a look at Mormon kitsch, and comedic performances.

Panelists  AMY CHAMBERLAIN is the creator of the wildly popular “Ask a Beehive” column, featured in Mormonism’s first online humor magazine, The Sugar Beet. Many of her columns were reprinted in The Mormon Tabernacle Enquirer (Pince Nez Press). She recently returned to her native Utah after an extended stay in Dubai.

DAI NEWMAN has a BA in religion and culture from the University of Utah and will pursue an MA in religion this fall at Syracuse University. He is fascinated by the interplay between popular culture and religion and by the commercialization of faith.

JANA RIESS is the author, co-author, or editor of nine books, including What Would Buffy Do? and Mormonism for Dummies. She has a doctorate from Columbia University, teaches religion at Miami University, works as an editor, and blogs at BLOG.BELIEFNET.COM/FLUNKINGSAINTHOOD/. Presenter  MICHAEL VINSON, MST, Divinity School, University of Cambridge; author of SUNSTONE’s Scripture Notes column.

Abstract  This devotional explores several attributes of discipleship not normally associated with the Church, including the place of doubt in LDS testimony and the role of criticism within a faith community, relying on the example of Jesus, who criticized some within his faith community but did not withdraw from it. Nevertheless, his and your actions may not be not without peril to you. But when was a call ever easy?

211. Panel OUR MOTHER’S KEEPER

Abstract OURMOTHERSKEEPER.COM (OMK) was founded to explore the themes of environmentalism, ecofeminism, and ecological justice. Speakers will discuss their viewpoints on these issues and their interconnectedness, focusing especially on the common themes of commodification and efficient, profitable exploitation of nature and labor. Mormons typically find environmentalism and feminism threatening, hindering broader engagement of the Mormon community; OMK seeks to reduce these barriers by presenting a practical environmentalism and feminism focused on avoiding consumerism and increasing self-sufficiency in keeping with prophetic counsel.

Panelists MARK BROWN grew up in Utah and has many happy memories of camping and hiking in the mountains and deserts of the Beehive State. He pursues Mormon Studies as an avocation and is old enough to remember when the Wasatch Front didn’t have a winter inversion.

MELANIE FRANTI has a BS in geography and is completing another degree in environmental studies from the University of Utah. She’s been hooked on ecological issues since she took her first earth science class in 2003. When not doing schoolwork, she digs in the dirt and rides bicycles in Salt Lake City.

Presenter DOE DAUGHTREY is a PhD candidate at Arizona State University. Her specialty is religion in the Americas with an emphasis on the New Spirituality, religion and popular culture, and the gendered experience of religion.

Abstract According to scholars, Mormons are the leading consumers of religious iconography and “kitsch,” as compared to members of other North American Christian denominations. These physical reflections of religious identity are important to Mormons, who routinely display various images and objects in multiple locations in their homes. With an emphasis on altars, this paper looks at the hybrid material products Latter-day Saints create when they integrate Mormonism with New Age and Pagan elements of the New Spirituality.

Presenter DALE E. LUFFMAN is the ecumenical and interfaith officer of the Community of Christ and serves in the Council of Twelve Apostles. Responsible for theological education and development ministries and for special missionary projects for Community of Christ, he serves as a faculty member for Community of Christ Seminary.

Abstract In November 2010, the delegates to the General Assembly of the National Council of Churches of Christ (NCC), a leading force for ecumenical cooperation and witness among US Christian denominations, accepted the Community of Christ as a member, making it the 37th communion [denomination] in the NCC. This paper will explore the impulses, initiatives, and the official World Conference actions that materially advanced ecumenical involvement and participation on the part of the Community of Christ with other Christian communions. It will also explore the significance that membership in the NCC has for Community of Christ, its history, and its mission.
214.  Paper  THE CONTESTED MEANING OF DEMOCRACY IN EARLY MORMONISM AND METHODISM

Presenter CHRISTOPHER SMITH is pursuing a PhD at Claremont Graduate University. His recent publications include "Sacred Sci-Fi: Orson Scott Card as Mormon Mythmaker" in SUNSTONE and "The Inspired Fictionalization of the 1835 United Firm Revelations" in the Claremont Journal of Mormon Studies.

Abstract In The Democratization of American Christianity, Nathan O. Hatch documents the rise of an array of populist religious sects, including the Mormons and the Methodists. However, it is a mistake to equate all democratic religion with populist religion, as Hatch does. Dissenters from the Mormons and Methodists used the populists’ own democratic rhetoric against them, even though they tended to be respectable bourgeois liberals instead of the down-on-their-luck populists Hatch catalogues. The bourgeois dissenters and Hatch’s rough-and-ready populists were equally committed to democracy, but the two groups interpreted it differently. For the liberal dissenters, democracy meant total freedom of individual action, whereas for the classically republican populists, it meant freedom from injustice.

In 2003, the US Supreme Court struck down laws criminalizing sex between gay and lesbian individuals, finding that those laws violated the individuals’ rights to privacy and intimate association. Could the same logic apply to anti-polygamy laws? A recent lawsuit, Brown v. Herbert, argues just that.

What are the legal claims in the Brown lawsuit, and are they likely to succeed? What might be some of the legal or social effects of decriminalizing polygamy? This panel discusses the legal claims in the Brown lawsuit, as well as some of the likely social and community effects the litigation and its possible outcomes might create.

221.  Panel  WHY WE STAY

Abstract This perennially well-received session features the stories of those who chose to remain active, dedicated Latter-day Saints even in the face of difficult challenges to traditional faith. How have these members wrestled with their faith and emerged more determined than ever to remain in the Latter-day Saint community?

Musical number “O Love That Glorifies the Son” performed by JANEANNE PETERSON, ALAN EASTMAN

Moderator J. FREDERICK (TOBY) PINGREE originated “Why We Stay” nine years ago. He has been a mission president, served as a bishop three times, and is a former SUNSTONE board chair.

Panelists KENT G. OLSON has degrees from the University of Utah and Stevens Institute of Technology. He retired after 37 years with Bell Laboratories and IBM as a computing systems programmer and administrator. Church music, particularly the organ, has been a compelling avocation since he was 14.

JODY ENGLAND HANSEN is a teacher of creativity and a mixed media book artist who writes whenever she can, publishes not as often as she would like, and speaks publicly and privately (maybe more than she needs). She enjoys adventures on a tandem bicycle with her husband, Mike. They will participate on two Temple to Temple bike rides this year, Provo to Billings in July and Nauvoo to Kirtland in September.

MICHAEL J. STEVENS is professor of management and business administration department chair at Weber State University. He has conducted award-winning research in global leadership, self-managing work teams, and interpersonal competencies. 241. Paper JOSEPH AND EMMA SMITH’SNAUVOO MANSION HOUSE: HISTORY AND MYSTERY

Presenter LACHLAN MACKAY lives in Nauvoo, IL, and is the Director of Community of Christ Historic Sites.

Abstract Joseph and Emma Smith's Nauvoo, IL, "Mansion House" has been open for tours since 1918. This illustrated presentation will explore questions related to restoration and interpretation of the home. Topics will include who gets credit/blame for the bar room, the real purpose of Joseph’s secret closet, and exterior symbolism the Mansion House shares with the Nauvoo Temple.

242. Paper EITHER/OR: PARABLES OF THE KINGDOM

Presenter JANICE ALLRED is a writer on theological topics, author of God the Mother and Other Theological Essays, and president of the Mormon Women’s Forum.

Abstract Embodiment is essential to Mormon ontology. Even God has a body, and eternal life is lived in a physical body in a physical environment in social relationships with other embodied beings. Nevertheless, Mormon salvation discourse has not fully recognized the importance of the physical in salvation. Focusing on the kingdom of heaven opens up questions about the physical dimension of salvation. Is the kingdom of heaven a place or a condition? Who participates in it? This paper will explore Jesus’ parables of the kingdom. How does the embodiment of salvation doctrine in parables illuminate the nature of salvation?

243. Paper THE IMPACT OF WONDER ON RELIGIOUS AND INTIMATE LIFE

Presenters LISA HANSEN is a graduate student at BYU studying marriage and family therapy. Lisa and her husband, Bill, are the parents of seven children who have, inexplicably, grown up.

DOE DAUGHTREY is a PhD candidate in religious studies at Arizona State University. Doe and her husband know firsthand the power of wonder as it transforms a shortage of commonalities into stunned astonishment, deep inspiration, and breath-taking passion.

Abstract Wonder is excited by encounters with the unexpected, when we yield to “a sudden decentering of the self” (Bulkeley). Experiences of wonder spark both intense religious experiences and profound relationship connections. In both arenas—the intimately spiritual and the intimately social—when we are stunned, dazed, breath-taken, overwhelmed, consumed, or astonished, we feel yearnings to explore, to understand, to receive. What we receive (while wondering) will exceed the boundaries of our previous understanding, stimulating creative patterns of connection to God, loved ones, and the world. This session will explore the ways we often pursue stability at the expense of wonder, closing ourselves off to God and to each other. It will also invite us to remain open to the sparks of wonder in intimate relationships, our relationship with religion, and our relationship with God.
244. Paper  PACIFIST COUNCILOR IN THE FIRST PRESIDENCY: J. REUBEN CLARK, 1933-1961

Presenter  D. MICHAEL QUINN has a PhD in history from Yale University and served on BYU's faculty for twelve years. An independent scholar, he held an appointment as a Beinecke Fellow and post-doctoral associate in Yale's department of history from 2002-2003. He is the author of more than 80 articles and several award-winning books about Mormon history.

Abstract  For decades before he entered the First Presidency at age 61, Utah native J. Reuben Clark had been pro-war in philosophy and actions. As chief legal adviser in the US State Department, he even wanted to jail all pacifists. Despite this background, he played a different role in Mormon leadership circles by becoming a puzzling and strident anti-militarist, anti-interventionist, and pro-pacifist from 1933 to his death in 1961. His experiences and views have something for everyone on the spectrum between strident militarism to strident pacifism.

Presenter  DR. LARRY R. STUCKI is an emeritus professor of anthropology and sociology with a long teaching and administrative career. He received a BA from the University of Utah, an MA from UCLA, and a PhD from the University of Colorado.

Abstract  The consensus of many LDS scholars now is that the land described in the Book of Mormon is largely confined to Mesoamerica. However, an examination of internal clues from the book itself and non-Mormon scientific evidence for pre-Columbian sea voyages to the New World together with South American geological changes suggest that Ecuador and nearby Andean countries are a better locational “fit.”

251. Paper  THE CHANGING MESSAGE OF KIRTLAND TEMPLE TOURS 1830-2011

Presenter  BARBARA WALDEN has an MA in museum studies from the Cooperstown Graduate Program, SUNY Oneonta. She has worked with the National Baseball Hall of Fame and Museum, the Women's Rights National Historical Park, the Kirtland Temple, and is now the executive director of the Community of Christ Historic Sites Foundation.

Abstract

This paper will look at how the tour message delivered at the Kirtland Temple has changed over the past 175 years. Detailing the early tours led by Joseph Smith Sr. and Warren Parrish as well as the Kirtland Temple guides of today, the presentation will show how often the message shared at the Kirtland Temple reflected the larger mission and vision of the various denominations that owned the historic “House of the Lord.” The presentation will include historic and contemporary images of the Kirtland Temple and its guides.

252. Paper "WE ARE ALL GOING TO HAVE TO LIVE IT SOMEDAY": IS POLYGAMY REALLY A HIGHER LAW?

Presenter CARRIE MILES, PhD, is the author of The Redemption of Love and New Man, New Woman, New Life and a chapter entitled “What’s Love Got to Do with It?”: Earthly Experience of Celestial Marriage, Past and Present” in the recently published Modern Polygamy in the United States.

Abstract

Mormon theology distinguishes between eternal principles, called ‘higher laws,’ and earthly compromises or ‘lower laws.’ While the early practice of plural marriage is now forbidden in the mainstream LDS Church, it is still considered by many to be a higher law that ‘we are all going to have to live someday.’ This session will compare biblical statements about the purpose of marriage with historic LDS, contemporary Mormon fundamentalist, and African practices of polygamy to explore the question of whether polygamy really is a higher law. Audience members will have time to express their opinions in this interactive session.

253. Paper RAISING THE DEAD: MORMONS, EVANGELICALS, AND MIRACLES IN AMERICA

Presenter MATT BOWMAN recently completed his PhD in American religious history at Georgetown University. He is the associate editor of Dialogue: A Journal of Mormon Thought and once met Nick Nolte.

Abstract The power to raise the dead was among the gifts Christ gave his twelve apostles, as recorded in Matthew; later Paul boldly asserted it before Herod Agrippa. The gift appears again in the Book of Mormon. It should be no surprise that when Joseph Smith proclaimed the restoration of the primitive church, expectations for the restored gift were soon followed by rumors of its appearance and later outright manifestations. This paper considers the phenomenon of raising the dead in the larger context of the antebellum Protestant debate about the possibility of miracles; it will consider reports in early Mormonism and explore ways that Mormon experience, doctrine, and authority have explained the phenomenon, using it to illuminate changing Mormon understandings of the nature of the miracle itself.

Chair BENJAMIN PARK

254. Paper SEARCHING FOR GENE ENGLAND

Presenter CLIFTON H. JOLLEY began his professional life as a 6-to-midnight radio DJ and Capitol Records recording artist. He left these stable occupations for the more daring employments of teaching Seminary and Institute (for the CES) and religion and English (for BYU); writing a daily column for the Deseret News and the Spoken Word and Bonneville TV promotional spots for the Church. He has written and produced two documentaries for PBS. But he considers his greatest accomplishment to be: “Gene England and I wrecked Bert Wilson’s truck carrying bricks to build Gene and Charlotte’s home in Provo.” Dr. Jolley is a practicing Reform Jew and Unrepentant Mormon who lives in Dallas, TX.

Abstract Eugene England is remembered by tens of thousands as one of twentieth-century Mormonism’s most significant influences on culture, literature, and practical religion. When Gene participated in the founding of Dialogue, Elder Joseph Fielding Smith said it would not be good for the Church. And Gene's essays and sermons were as troubling to some as the scholarly journal he began was to Elder Smith. However, those who knew Gene would add a caveat that however inspiring or troubling his words, he was even more interesting and difficult to know. Whatever Eugene England's legacy and influence on Mormons and Mormonism, his influence—on the people who knew him—was greater. "Searching for Gene England" is a personal essay about how he troubled, tested, influenced, and inspired one Mormon to love him.

255. Paper THE FACE OF GOD: THE FILTER OF MORMON ICONOGRAPHY

Presenter ANDY FERNUIK studied music at BYU before earning a BA from the University of Utah in applied linguistics. He has served as an educator and curriculum developer in public and private schools around the world. Since 2002, he has worked as a professional skier.

Abstract Strategies of both preliterate Christian artists and media moguls saturate Mormon iconography. This investigation of LDS art and icon sketches disparities between fundamental doctrinal texts and the religious imagery evolved today. A revealing look at scripture, science, and iconography may reflect the stark gaps in our spiritual comprehension of a latter-day world. Understanding and narrowing these gaps may paint us a more accurate portrait of the face of God, perhaps even mending the divisions plaguing us today.

261. Panel THE MORMON SEX-ED PROJECT: CREATING A GOSPEL-BASED RESOURCE FOR HEALTHY SEXUALITY

Abstract According to Elder Larry R. Lawrence, "What the world really needs is courageous parenting from mothers and fathers who are not afraid to speak up and take a stand." This panel seeks to engage voices on the topics of sexual identity, fulfillment, and education from a gospel perspective. Our goal is to create a comprehensive resource to aid courageous parents in teaching children about sexual issues in an honest, positive, harmonious manner. We welcome parents and non-parents alike for a give-and-take audience discussion of how to raise Mormon youth with a healthy concept of their sexual selves.

Moderator/Panelist SARA K.S. HANKS is a writer, reader, and doula-in-training from St. George, UT, who now lives in Renton, WA, and blogs at SKRUSH.BLOGSPOT.COM.

Panelists CHELSEA LANE CAMPBELL has a BA in English from Southern Utah University and is currently pursuing an MFA at Texas State University. A newlywed feminist, she is a self-proclaimed sexual health and happiness advocate.

KRISANNE HASTINGS has a BA from BYU and an MA from the University of York in art history. She just returned to the States after teaching art to 40 kindergartners in Seoul, South Korea, and currently works at the Salt Lake Art Center.

262. Panel CRAFT, CREATION, AND CREED: FRIVOLITY, UTILITY, AND SPIRITUALITY

Abstract Working with and creating textiles has been women’s province for millennia, to the point that the matrilineal side of a family is known as the “distaff side” (a distaff being a tool used in spinning). Even in the centuries when carding, spinning, weaving, and sewing fabric were essential... duties if one wished to be clothed, human beings used textiles as a means of self-expression and creating beauty. Mormonism has a rich tradition of beautiful textile arts, including quilting bees in Relief Society, and teaching LDS girls to embroider, crochet, and knit in Primary. How does working with textiles support LDS women’s—and men’s—spiritual and creative lives and enrich their relationships with others?

Moderator/Panelist

HOLLY WELKER has a PhD in English literature from the University of Iowa. Her essay about textiles entitled “Satin Worship” was included in Best American Essays 2005.

Panelists

SARA BURLINGAME has been a Montessori teacher, Eurotrash, zine publisher, artisan bread baker, mother, partner, and blogger at FMH, with varying degrees of success. She makes her living as the director of religious education at the Unitarian Universalist Church of Cheyenne, but her passion is haunting the Wyoming legislature, whether Cheney is in town or not. She is a half-assed knitter, seamstress, and craft store barfly.

Although he rides a bicycle, the only spinning class OBADIAH SCHWARZKOPF has taken was with a group of spinning and knitting grandmothers in San Diego. His winter hat is a merino wool cap he spun and his wife knitted for him, and he harbors the quiet ambition to grow a field of flax that will one day become a custom-made linen shirt.

RACHEL MABEY WHIPPLE enjoys creating textile art by sewing, knitting, crocheting, and weaving. Everything she makes, from blankets to costumes, shawls to dishcloths, is made to be used and worn. Rachel has a BA in geology and now studies philosophy and anthropology at BYU.

Panel WHAT’S LOVE GOT TO DO WITH IT?

Abstract Can Mormons talk, write, and read candidly and unabashedly about sex? Is there a Mormon literature open to appreciation of sensuality in the daily living of a rich and fulfilling existence? Can the erotic be accommodated in the weave and texture of LDS understanding, culture, and theology, while maintaining a recognizably essential Mormon core? This panel proposes that it's critical to develop a paradigm that allows us to answer “Yes” to these questions.

Moderator/Panelist

PAUL SWEENSON is a journalist and poet whose second book of poems, In Sleep and other poems, will be published later this year by Dream Garden Press, Salt Lake City.

Panelists

LISA BUTTERWORTH is a wife and the mother of three beautiful redheads. She founded FEMINISTMORMONHOUSEWIVES.ORG and is currently studying for the Graduate Record Examination in order to pursue graduate study in sex therapy.

MORIAH JOVAN is the pen name of Elizabeth Beeton who created B10 Mediaworx. Titles from its LDS imprint, Peculiar Pages, include The Fob Bible and Out of the Mount. Magdelene, the third in Jovan’s trilogy of novels, is about a Mormon bishop and an ex-prostitute, and is under scrutiny in the Bloggernacle and elsewhere.

LARRY RIGBY is the author of The Jäger Artist. He was educated at Idaho State University, BYU, the University of Kansas, and The Johns Hopkins University. He is working on a new novel, The Philosopher’s House.

Panel SOMETHING WIKI THIS WAY COMES: AN ANALYSIS OF THE MORMON CONTENT ON WIKIPEDIA

Abstract Wikipedia is a web-based encyclopedia project offering free access to more than 18 million articles in a variety of languages written and edited collaboratively by volunteers world-wide. With 365 million readers, it is arguably the largest and most popular Internet reference site. Perhaps its most significant feature is that new entries can be added and/or edited by nearly anyone willing to follow its guidelines. This panel will analyze the breadth, accuracy, balance, and authorship of the Mormon content on Wikipedia as well as suggest topics for entries yet unwritten.

Panel MORMON EPIC: A POETIC CELEBRATION OF JOSEPH SMITH AND THE RESTORATION

Abstract The Restoration of Primitive Christianity and the emergence of Mormonism as a world religion is a story worthy of an epic poem. Now Mormon poet Ron Wilcox has written the first books of such an epic, with Joseph Smith as the latter-day Odysseus-Achilles hero at the center. Wilcox’s poem captures Joseph’s soul and the beginnings of Mormonism in powerful language and imagery.

Moderator

RON WILCOX has written the first books of such an epic, with Joseph Smith as the latter-day Odysseus-Achilles hero at the center. Wilcox’s poem captures Joseph’s soul and the beginnings of Mormonism in powerful language and imagery.
Ron Wilcox will discuss the composition of Mormon Epic, after which a group of Mormon poets will read sections of the poem. Finally, we’ll open the floor for a general discussion with the poet, the readers, and the audience.

Moderator/Panelist

ROBERT A. REES has taught modern poetry at various universities including UCLA. His own poetry has appeared in a variety of journals and anthologies.

Panelists

BRENT CORCORAN is a yoga teacher, production manager for Dialogue: A Journal of Mormon Thought, and compositor for the Journal of Mormon History.

DOE DAUGHTREY is a PhD candidate in religious studies at Arizona State University. Her specialty is religion in the Americas with an emphasis on the New Spirituality, religion and popular culture, and the gendered experience of religion.

CLIFTON H. JOLLEY, PhD, has published essays and poems in the Ensign, Dialogue, and SUNSTONE. President of Advent Communications in Dallas, TX, he is a practicing Reform Jew and Unrepartent Mormon.

KAREN MARGUERITE MOLONLEY is a professor of English at Weber State University. She honored her Irish heritage by publishing Seamus Heaney and the Emblems of Hope and is now at work on Ferryman’s Daughter, a memoir that pays homage to her German heritage.

RONALD WILCOX, a graduate of BYU and Baylor University, is an actor, playwright, novelist, and poet. He has acted in more than sixty plays, and his own plays have been produced in major cities across the country.

Chair KAIMPONO (KAIMI) WENGER, JD, SUNSTONE board member

Opening song “Oh, Say What Is Truth?” (words and music on handout)

Invocation To be announced.

Abstract This is Sunstone’s perennially best-attended session. Hear speakers share the events and concepts that animate their religious lives—a little soul-baring, a little spiritual journey, a little intellectual testimony-bearing. This self-reflective night is about the things that matter most, including spirited congregational hymn-singing.

Speaker ARDIS E. PARSHALL is an independent historian of Utah and Mormon history living in Salt Lake City. She specializes in the archival collections of the LDS Church History Library and is pleased by acknowledgments of prominent historians citing her contributions to their work. With W. Paul Reeve, she co-edited Mormonism: A Historical Encyclopedia (ABC-Clio, 2010), a one-volume study of the people, events, and issues of Mormon history, with contributions by many of the finest contemporary Mormon historians, both “elder statesmen” and emerging graduate students.

Ardis blogs at Keepapitchinin: The Mormon History Blog (keePaPiTCHiNiN.ORG), and writes a monthly column about Utah history for the Salt Lake Tribune. She has delivered papers at past SUNSTONE annual meetings on the papers of Brigham Young, on the trials (both ecclesiastical and civil) of a female ancestor struggling to keep both her Church membership and ownership of the land she had homesteaded, and on the US State Department’s opposition to Mormon immigration. She is also a frequent presenter at meetings of the Mormon History Association, Utah State History, and at other conferences. Ardis served a French-speaking mission to the recently dissolved Switzerland Geneva Mission and is a gospel doctrine teacher in her ward.

Musical Number “Summer Girl” by HOLLY ROBBINS

Holly Robbins has been singer/songwriter, lead vocalist, guitarist, and percussionist for the bands Pickin’ On Molly and Steel N’ Thunder. She is now pursuing her solo career and performs all over Utah and Salt Lake Counties.

Speaker CAMILLA M. SMITH graduated from BYU with high honors in the Honors Program, attended the University of Utah, and the University of Grenoble in France. She has a master’s degree from New York’s Columbia University Teachers College in English Education.

312. Paper FLUNKING SAINTHOOD

Presenter JANA RIESS is the author, co-author, or editor of nine books, including What Would Buffy Do? and Mormonism for Dummies. She has a doctorate from Columbia University, teaches religion at Miami University, works as an editor, and blogs at Blog.BeliefNet.com/FlunkingSainthood/.

Abstract For her forthcoming memoir, Flunking Sainthood, Jana Riess tackled twelve different spiritual practices in a quest to become more saintly, including fasting, fixed-hour prayer, gratitude, Sabbath-keeping, and generosity. Although she began with great plans for success (“Really, how hard could that be?” she asked at the start of her saintmaking year), she found to her growing humiliation that she was failing—not just at some of the practices, but at every single one. In this session, Jana will share her funny yet vulnerable story of the quest for spiritual perfection and the reality of spiritual failure, which turned out to be a valuable practice in itself. She will also discuss ways Mormons can combat legalism in favor of a more holistic and life-giving approach to spiritual practices.

Presenter ROD L. MELDRUM is president of FIRM (Foundation for Indigenous Research and Mormonism), as well as researcher, author, and national lecturer on the truthfulness of the Book of Mormon.

Abstract Exhaustive new research has led to a reexamination of evidence supporting the Book of Mormon’s historicity in the “Heartland” of North America rather than Mesoamerica. The evidence is robust and based upon a hierarchical pattern of evidence beginning with scriptural prophecies and promises, followed by statements of Joseph Smith, geographic passages, and evidence from modern-day archeology, anthropology, linguistics, climatology, cultural and social patterns, oceanic currents, artifacts, metallurgy, building practices and materials, DNA findings, Native American oral histories and legends, animal migrations, and human population movements.

Presenter STEPHEN COHEN has a BS and MS from Utah State University in civil engineering and has been a structural engineer for 25 years. Married for almost 28 years, he has four children. Proud of his Mormon heritage, he serves in the scouting program.

Abstract In a discussion with my college-aged son during the 2004 election debates on gay marriage, I was shocked when he expressed sympathy for gay marriage, and I argued against it. Six months later, our family learned that our oldest son is gay. This sent us on a journey to understand the complexity of homosexuality.

“Insights toward Understanding Homosexuality” focuses on six key topics: 1) Same Gender Attraction Is Not a Choice; 2) It’s Not Just about Sex; 3) Scriptural Interpretation Must Account for Cultural Influences; 4) Like Us, Our Leaders Are Human; 5) Gay Marriage Is Not a Threat to Traditional Families; 6) Understanding Mental Health Aspects.
CONCURRENT SESSIONS, 11:00 AM–12:30 PM

316. Paper FROM THE ABSOLUTE TO THE INDIVIDUAL: PERSON AND PRE-MORTAL EXISTENCE IN NINETEENTH-CENTURY MORMONISM AND ROMANTICISM

Presenter JAMES M. MCLACHLAN is a professor of philosophy and religion at Western Carolina University. He is editor of Element: Journal of the Society of Mormon Philosophy and Theology; and co-editor of Discourses In Mormon Theology.

Abstract In When Souls Had Wings: Premortal Existence in Western Thought, Terryl Givens covers the heterodox doctrine of a pre-mortal existence from Plato to today. This idea in Platonic philosophy and its emphasis in Christian Platonism always accompanies a story of a fall from perfect unity in the ideal and a return to the same unity at the end of time. But Givens doesn’t see that for nineteenth-century Romantics and Idealists, this cycle of alienation and return assumes an even more dramatic character as the alienation of the individual from the absolute and her eventual return is the creation of a new and greater unity than the original; thus the final unity is also a plurality of persons. Early and nineteenth-century Mormonism added another twist: the final unity occurs repeatedly and the plurality of God(s) is a constant feature of the story.

Abstract The Book of Mormon musical plays to sold-out audiences who leap to their feet for standing ovations as the show ends; the play has earned critical raves and won “Best Musical” in the 2011 Tonys. Whether “God loves Mormons and he wants some more,” as the lyrics to “Two by Two” declare, Broadway seems to love Mormons—at least, fictional ones. Given that the play explores how made-up truths can offer redemption and hope, what can Mormons learn about themselves from the made-up missionaries, fake faith, and concocted conversions depicted in the hottest musical of 2011—if not one of the most irreverent and profane musicals ever?

MARC E. SHAW has a PhD from UC Santa Barbara and teaches theatre arts and dramatic literature at Hartwick College in central New York. His recent publishing credits include co-editing Performing American Masculinities: The 21st-Century Man in Popular Culture.

ROBERT D. ANDERSON is the author of Inside the Mind of Joseph Smith: Psychobiography and the Book of Mormon. After retiring from full-time psychiatric practice, Dr. Anderson now does temporary assignments with inner-city mental hygiene clinics and Native Americans.

WILLIAM MORAIN is a retired professor of plastic surgery at Dartmouth Medical School and presently engaged in numerous community development activities in Iowa. He is author of The Sword of Laban: Joseph Smith, Jr., and the Dissociated Mind.

HOLLY WELKER has a PhD in English literature from the University of Iowa. Her poetry and prose have appeared in publications ranging from the New Era to the New York Times and from Best American Essays to Bitch.

322. Panel A PSYCHOBIOGRAPHY OF JOSEPH SMITH: TWO SECULAR VIEWS UNITED

Abstract With no historical, archeological, or genetic evidence supporting either the Book of Mormon or the Book of Abraham, the most prominent naturalistic theory of their creation is that they came from Smith’s own mind. Over a decade ago, each of us independently published a comprehensive psychobiographic study of Smith, using contemporary models of behavioral science to provide alternative explanations to the mystical narrative of the Mormon tradition. In this session, we will update our studies to reinforce and further clarify our understanding of Smith’s psychological profile as expressed in his writings and behavior.

Respondent JAMES M. MCCLACHLAN is a professor of philosophy and religion at Western Carolina University.

Panelists DAN WOTHERSPOON, PhD, served as editor of SUNSTONE and executive director of the Sunstone Education Foundation from 2001-2008.

323. Panel MORMON QUEST FOR THE PRESIDENCY: FROM JOSEPH SMITH TO MITT ROMNEY AND JON HUNTSMAN

Abstract This session is a roundtable discussion focusing on two presidential candidates, Mitt Romney and Jon Huntsman, each seeking the 2012 Republican nomination for president. Special emphasis will be given to the strengths versus the weaknesses of each, as well as assessing the chances for success of each. A brief overview will be provided of the nine candidates with Mormon ties (beginning with Joseph Smith in 1844) who preceded Romney and Huntsman in seeking the presidency. The basis for this discussion is the expanded and updated volume The Mormon Quest for the Presidency by Newell G. Bringhurst and Craig L. Foster.

Moderator MARK A. SCHERER World Church Historian, Community of Christ, Independence, MO.

Panelists NEWELL G. BRINGHURST professor emeritus, College of the Sequoias, Visalia, CA.

WILLIAM D. RUSSELL professor emeritus, Graceland University, Lamoni, IA.

Additional panelist to be announced.

Room THE LAIR (second floor)

324. Panel HABITS OF BEING: MORMON WOMEN AND INHERITED MATERIAL CULTURE

Abstract This session and its accompanying exhibit take women's material culture out of boxes, attics, and closets and display it in a public conversational space. In the exhibit, fifteen women explore the rich material heritage of their female ancestors through photographs and words. In the discussion, women reflect on their heritage as told through objects, including the role of digital humanities in preserving our ancestors' legacies.

Moderator ELIZABETH PINBOROUGH holds an MA in religion and literature from Yale Divinity School and currently writes freelance.

Panelists EMILY CLYDE CURTIS is the current co-editor-in-chief of Exponent II, holds an MTS in Hebrew Bible from Harvard Divinity School, and recently presented at the Claremont Mormon Women’s Conference.

KAY GAISFORD has an MA in communications, works as a desktop publisher and family historian, and is a computer skills instructor in Arizona.

KRISANNE HASTINGS has a BA from BYU and an MA from the University of York in art history. She just returned to the States after teaching art to 40 kindergartners in Seoul, South Korea, and currently works at the Salt Lake Art Center.

ANITA WELLS has written several family history books, serves as her extended family curator and acid-free tissue-paper user, and is an unnaturally young member of the Daughters of the Utah Pioneers. She has a BA in Near Eastern Studies from BYU.

KRIS WRIGHT has an MA in history from the University of Western Ontario and has co-authored three articles with Jonathan Stapley on Mormon healing rituals. She is an emeritus permablogger at BYCOMMONCONSENT.COM and currently blogs at JUVENILEINSTRUCTOR.ORG.

325. Panel HOMEMAKING RADICALISM AND HOMEMAKING REALITIES

Abstract The LDS Church has made it clear to women that their proper sphere of influence is the home; it is women's responsibility to care for the spiritual, emotional, physical, and psychological health and well-being of all who live with them. Women's myriad obligations to family and home fall under the category of "homemaking," a weighty term expressing all sorts of expectations about how women should behave and feel as they make a home for others. Interest in "homemaking" continues, though today it is often shaped by difficult economic realities, environmental and commercial concerns, shifts in what society accepts as the definition of a family, and a general fear about a decline in the proper stewardship of our social existence. What does it mean to make a home, and how do we all contribute to the creation of homes we want to live in?
Introduction

RUSSELL ARBEN FOX received a PhD in politics from Catholic University of America in Washington DC. He taught at Mississippi State University, Arkansas State University, and Western Illinois University before accepting his present position as director of the Political Science program at Friends University. His session introduction will be read by BRAD KRAMER.

Moderator/Panelist

BRAD KRAMER is a PhD candidate in sociocultural anthropology at the University of Michigan where he studies religious language, ritual, and Mormonism. He lives in Ann Arbor with his wife and five children.

Panelists

TRACY MCKAY is an adult convert to the Church and California native living in Washington state with her three young children. Writing is a necessary component of Tracy's sanity, but all recreational reading has been replaced by academic coursework as Tracy works toward graduate degrees.

KRISTINE HAGLUND is the editor of Dialogue: A Journal of Mormon Thought and lives near Boston with her three children. When she is not trying to persuade them to bathe, eat vegetables, and otherwise act civilized by meekness, diligence, love unfeigned, and screaming dire threats, she reads omnivorously, cooks herbivorously, and cleans dilatorily.

D CHRISTIAN HARRISON lives in Salt Lake City, where he manages branding and creative endeavors for the Utah Foster Care Foundation and consults on the side. He attended BYU where he studied political science, French, Mandarin, and Danish. He’s feverishly finalizing his first novel, Brother Husband, due out this autumn.

Paper 1

THE MORMON ENDOWMENT AND THE CHRISTIANIZATION OF FREEMASONRY

Presenter

MICHAEL G. REED has an MA in liberal arts from Cal State Sacramento and has been accepted into the joint PhD program in Christian history at the Graduate Theological Union/UC Berkeley. A revision and expansion of his MA thesis, titled Banishing the Cross: The Emergence of a Mormon Taboo, is forthcoming from John Whitmer Books in 2011.

Abstract

In the early nineteenth century, many prominent Freemasons sought to “Christianize” Freemasonry. Distinguished European Masonic writers promoted interpretations of Masonic rituals that were almost exclusively Christian. Reverend Salem Town of New York also promoted this Christian application in his widely circulated A System of Speculative Masonry (1818), claiming that the initiate’s progression out of darkness and into the light is symbolic of the fall of Adam/man and his redemption through Jesus Christ’s atoning sacrifice. I argue that Joseph Smith participated in this “Christianization” movement by placing Masonic ritual in the narrative context of Adam’s fall and redemption.

Paper 2

FREEMASONRY AND THE ‘ROD OF NATURE’ REVELATION

Presenter

CLAIR BARRUS has a BS in computer science from BYU and is a senior systems engineer. He manages several websites, including LDS-CHURCH-HISTORY.BLOGSPOT.COM, TODAY-CHURCHISTORY.BLOGSPOT.COM, and MORMONCHURCHHISTORY.BLOGSPOT.COM.

Abstract

Recent findings have demonstrated a relationship between the Royal Arch Masonic cipher and Joseph Smith’s understanding of ancient language. The Royal Arch ritual describes two acts of restoration in conjunction with the Rod of Aaron. Lost scripture is recovered, and sacred hieroglyphs are deciphered. D&C 8 similarly describes Oliver Cowdery’s potential to translate and restore lost scripture in conjunction with his rod/gift of Aaron. I will discuss translation and restoration as they occur in Royal Arch Masonry and in D&C 8.

341. Paper FROM DIVERSITY TO UNITY: THE TRANSITION OF LDS MEETINGHOUSES FROM BEAUTIFUL TO FUNCTIONAL

Presenter JONATHAN KLAND has an MA in architecture from the University of Florida. From 2008 to 2010, he was an architect for the LDS Church where he designed a Middle Eastern meetinghouse for Abu Dhabi and a new series of Standard Plan meetinghouses for the US/Canada. He documents outstanding Mormon architecture at LDSARCHITECTURE.WORDPRESS.COM.

Abstract The fate of LDS meetinghouses has followed the fate of design and construction in America with a move to the suburbs and standardization. Cost and functional requirements now trump aesthetic and spatial concerns in these packaged products sent to wards and stakes worldwide. The presentation will show distinctive features of LDS meetinghouses around the world, review standard plan development from its inception through today, show positive and negative consequences that have resulted from these correlated designs, and ask if it is possible to build both functional and beautiful standardized buildings.

342. Paper WHY MORMONISM CAN ABIDE GAY MARRIAGE

Presenter BRAD CARMACK is in his last year of the JD/MPA program at BYU. He is currently a teacher’s assistant for Human Resources Law and Bioethics and regularly participates in USGA (Understanding Same Gender Attraction), an unsponsored BYU student talk group.

Abstract The LDS Church has publicly opposed efforts to legalize same-sex marriage in Hawaii, Alaska, and California; its Proclamation on the Family declares marriage to be between a man and a woman. Nevertheless, a strong moral case for LDS same-sex marriage exists and is articulated here with 26 supporting reasons.

343. Paper PURSUING TRUTH THROUGH FICTION: THE ASSASSINATION OF GOVERNOR BOGGS, A HISTORICAL NOVEL BY ROD MILLER

Presenter ROD MILLER’s works include the nonfiction book Massacre at Bear River—First, Worst, Forgotten, a limited edition poetry chapbook, Newe Dreams, and the collection Things a Cowboy Sees and Other Poems. The Assassination of Governor Boggs is his second novel and sixth book.

Abstract On 6 May 1842, an unknown assailant shot Lilburn Boggs, former governor of Missouri and author of the infamous Extermination Order against the Mormons. Though given up for dead and widely reported killed, Boggs survived. The crime was never solved. Twenty-five years after the fact, seeking closure if not justice, his family hired a Pinkerton agent to examine the evidence and identify the assailant. From the West Coast to the banks of the Mississippi, from the Missouri River to the shores of the Great Salt Lake, the detective follows a trail that leads, inevitably, to the notorious Mormon gunfighter Porter Rockwell.

344. Paper SIBBRICH’S TALE

Presenter KAREN MARGUERITE MOLONEY is a professor of English at Weber State University. She honored her Irish heritage by publishing Seamus Heaney and the Emblems of Hope and is now at work on Ferryman’s Daughter, a memoir that pays homage to her German heritage.

Abstract In this portion of a longer memoir that examines my connections to the lives of lineal ancestors in sixteenth-century northern Germany, I draw on historical events to imagine what life would have been like for the daughter of a ferryman ancestor named Eede Feerman. Records of the time primarily document the lives of the region’s land-owning men, like those of Eede and his two sons. Still, it is likely that Eede also had a daughter, and in this section of my memoir, I tell her story—and speculate on its residue in my twenty-first-century life.

345. Discussion  SUNSTONE TOWN HALL MEETING

Abstract  There have been a few changes at SUNSTONE this year, including the 2011 Symposium’s move to Ogden/Weber State, using SUNSTONE’s Facebook page to promote events, launching a SUNSTONE student group at the University of Utah, and rolling out an electronic subscription via the SUNSTONE app for Apple devices (and soon on Android!).

SUNSTONE’s leadership and staff seeks your input and feedback on the organization’s mission, projects, goals, and challenges. Together, we will explore the community’s hopes for SUNSTONE’s continued growth and longevity. Bring your best suggestions, ideas, and feedback to this interactive session, and let your voice be heard—especially if you have strong feelings about future symposium locations!

Facilitator  MICHAEL J. STEVENS, chair of the SUNSTONE board of directors.

Participants  SUNSTONE board members, staff, and you, the interested constituents.

346. Paper  JON MCNAUGHTON, MORMON ARTIST/RIGHT-WING PROPAGANDIST

Presenter  ROBERT A. REES is former Assistant Dean of Fine Arts at UCLA and a cultural critic. He teaches Mormon Studies at Graduate Theological Union in Berkeley.

Abstract  Mormon painter Jon McNaughton is one of the most popular and commercially successful artists in the United States. His religious and patriotic paintings have sold widely, and YouTube videos of two of his most popular paintings have each been seen by more than 3,000,000 viewers. But McNaughton’s art is also controversial because of the overt far-right political and religious messages it conveys. This session investigates the McNaughton phenomenon (including the recent controversy at BYU over his work) and its implications for Mormonism.

Respondent  ROD L. MELDRUM is president of FiRM (Foundation for Indigenous Research and Mormonism), as well as researcher, author, and national lecturer on the truthfulness of the Book of Mormon.

351. Paper PASSIVE AGGRESSION AMONG THE LATTER-DAY SAINTS: EVIDENCE FROM THE WASATCH FRONT

Presenter MICHAEL J. STEVENS, PhD, is a professor in the college of business at Weber State University. For the past 15 years, he has been administering assessments to his students to measure their passive-aggressive tendencies.

Abstract When people experience disagreements or conflict, passive aggression is one of at least five possible response options. Research shows that it is generally a poor, unconstructive strategy, and is also a less common response among the US population at large. However, for Latter-day Saints born and raised along the Wasatch Front, the passive-aggressive response appears to occur at a rate approximately two to three times higher than the national average. This paper will present data on this phenomenon along with a discussion on the most likely causal forces driving these findings.

Chair ELLEN DECOO
Room WILDCAT THEATER (second floor)

352. Paper BASKETBALL UNDER THE STEEPLE: THE STRANGE DESIGN OF MORMON CHAPELS

Abstract Mormon chapels create sacred space and, through their design and composition, communicate subtle messages about what and whom the Church values. The influence of Mormon chapels on the worship experience will be compared with architecturally created sacred spaces from other religious traditions. The design of Mormon church buildings and the size, placement, and furnishings of specific rooms reflect the gender bias in the Church. These architecturally reinforced prejudices frequently lead to practical problems for Primary and Young Women leaders. We will discuss alternatives to chapel design that may solve these problems. We will conclude the session with a slide show of Mormon chapels with unique steeples and facades.

Presenters TAMARA TAY Som is an elementary teacher in Midvale, UT. She is currently pursuing an MA in colonial history at the University of Utah where she is the president of SUNSTONE’s student chapter.
MATTHEW TAY Som is a dental technician and artist in Phoenix, AZ. A returned missionary, he has a degree in Portuguese from Indiana University.

353. Paper THE SIGNIFICANCE OF MARTIN LUTHER KING, JR. FOR THE SAINTS TODAY

Abstract We all know Dr. Martin Luther King, Jr. as the leading civil rights activist in America in the 1960s—a man who offered a prophetic voice to the major domestic issue of his time. But he should also be seen as one whose thought, as reflected in a significant body of public writings, reveals a man who can be rightly regarded as one of the leading Christian thinkers of twentieth-century America as well as a prophet whose message can and should be appropriated by Mormons of various perspectives. He gleaned from the best philosophical and religious thinkers of his day a new way to think about major issues and a strategy for dealing with not only racial oppression but other issues as well; thus, we should make much more use of his thinking in church life today.

Presenter WILLIAM D. RUSSELL is a retired professor of history, religion, and politics at Graceland University in Lamoni, IA. He has been president of both the John Whitmer Historical Association and the Mormon History Association.

354. Paper SOLITARY FAITH

Presenter TIFFANY MULL was born and raised in California but moved to Utah to attend college and stayed. She served a mission in Brazil and graduated from BYU where she majored in English and minored in anthropology. She now works in home health.

Abstract The paper investigates the cultural space inhabited by LDS women who remain single past the “ordinary” marrying age of their religion. Using stories and personal narratives of single LDS women, the project situates and analyzes the experiences of the women within the broader Mormon framework. The women in the study feel out of sorts: they are caught between what their culture tells them they should be and what they actually are.

Chair CHARLENE DURHAM

355. Paper THE EARLY ISRAELITE/CHRISTIAN DOCTRINE REGARDING THE PRIMORDIAL INCARNATION OF YAHWEH AND SATAN

Presenter FRED COLLIER is editor of the magazine Doctrine of the Priesthood, which is devoted to covering early Church doctrine and history. He has published numerous books, including Unpublished Revelations of the Prophets and Presidents of The Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints, Vols I, II, & III; The Teachings of President Brigham Young Vol 3 1852–1854; and recently published a new edition of Unpublished Revelations Vol 1.
Abstract  Latter-day Saints understand the Bible is not always “translated correctly” and that many plain and precious parts have been removed. The Dead Sea Scrolls reveal that among the missing information is an ancient Israelite/Christian doctrine that Yahweh was born on Earth as the first-born son of Adam—first as Abel and afterwards as Seth—and that Cain was the son of the serpent. The sacrifice of Cain and Abel was an offering to be accepted by the savior of the world. Upon Cain’s rejection, he murdered his competition, after which 130 years later, Yahweh was incarnate again in the person of Seth. Come hear more about these early Israelite and Christian beliefs and what they mean to today’s understanding of Biblical texts.

Chair  MARK D. THOMAS

356. Paper  THE SOCIAL AND ECONOMIC TEACHINGS OF MORMONISM: SOCIAL JUSTICE IS ALIVE AND WELL

Presenter  WARNER WOODWORTH is a global social entrepreneur and professor at a university in Utah. Author of 10 books and a hundred articles, he sees it as his life’s calling to reduce human suffering and empower the poor.

Abstract  In the 1980s, the US Conference of Catholic Bishops issued their pastoral letter about our responsibility as Christians to assist the poor. In 2010, the LDS Church stated its new Fourth Mission “to serve the poor and needy” in a new handbook that emphasizes ministering to others. Similar strong traditions exist in many other Christian churches as well as in Islam, Judaism, Buddhism, and Hinduism.

Yet today, loud voices within Mormonism seem to reject the spiritual values of being inclusive (Mitt Romney), social justice (Glenn Beck), and caring for immigrants (Arizona Senator Russell Pearce and the Utah legislature). I will articulate LDS principles of community outreach and service to the downtrodden, and will allow ample time to engage in civil discourse about Mormonism as a community phenomenon.

361. Paper  VERY CARELESS IN HIS UTTERANCES: EDITING, CORRECTING, AND CENSORING CONFERENCE ADDRESSES

Abstract  At the Sunday morning session of the October 2010 General Conference, President Boyd K. Packer gave a talk titled “Cleansing the Inner Vessel.” A few sentences and several words were changed from the spoken talk in the published talk posted on the Church’s website, LDS.ORG Almost instantly, these changes and their signifi- cance were analyzed in the media and on the Internet. Some suggested that this kind of editing is a common occurrence with general conference talks. Others asserted that the practice may not be unique, but is uncommon and even a monumental moment in Mormon history. This paper seeks to answer the question, how common is this kind of editing?

Presenter  JOE GEISNER and his wife provide residential care services for the developmentally disabled. Joe is a lover of Mormon books and reads far more than he should.

Respondent  LAVINA FIELDING ANDERSON is the editor of Lucy’s Book: A Critical Edition of Lucy Mack Smith’s Family Memoir and is currently researching Lucy’s Life: A Biography of Lucy Mack Smith.

Moderator  HOLLY WELKER has written about Mormonism in such forums as the New York Times, RELIGIONDISPATCHES.ORG, HUFFINGTONPOST.COM, GUARDIAN.CO.UK, BITCH, SUNSTONE and Dialogue.

Panelists  JANICE ALLRED is a writer on theological topics and author of God the Mother and Other Theological Essays; she is also president of the Mormon Women’s Forum.

JOANNA BROOKS is chair of the department of English and Comparative Literature at San Diego State University. She is a columnist at RELIGIONDISPATCHES.ORG and maintains the “Ask Mormon Girl” advice column at FEMINISTMORMONHOUSEWIVES.ORG.

Abstract This session focuses on forthcoming anthologies in the Persistence of Polygamy series, including eight essays examining Joseph Smith and the beginnings of Mormon polygamy up to 1844. The essays are original, never-before-published contributions by scholars with special expertise on the subject. Among the topics examined are polyandry, underage marriage, the question of Joseph Smith's polygamous offspring explored through DNA analysis, and D&C 132 as a "doctrinal foundation" for the practice. Come hear the editor and contributing writers discuss the contents of upcoming volumes in this compelling series.

Moderator NEWELL G. BRINGHURST is an independent scholar and professor emeritus of history and political science at College of the Sequoias in Visalia, CA. He is the author/editor of many books, including The Persistence of Polygamy: Joseph Smith and the Origins of Mormon Polygamy, co-edited with Craig L. Foster.

Panelists BRIAN C. HALES is an anesthesiologist at Davis Hospital and Medical Center in Layton and is webmaster of JOSEPHSMITHSPOLYGAMY.COM. His book Modern Polygamy and Mormon Fundamentalism: The Generations After the Manifesto received the 2007 best book award from the John Whitmer Historical Association.

ANNIE T. WATSON was born and raised in plural marriage. She is co-author of Voices in Harmony: Contemporary Women Celebrate Plural Marriage.

ANNE WILDE was raised LDS and has been an Independent Fundamentalist Mormon for more than 40 years. Co-author of Voices in Harmony: Contemporary Women Celebrate Plural Marriage, she was managing editor of the fundamentalist magazine Mormon Focus.

366. CHOOSE THE RIGHT—BUT WHICH IS RIGHT? MORMONS AND IMMIGRATION

Abstract

Given that immigration was a significant topic during Utah’s last legislative session and remains a pressing social issue in the Western US, SUNSTONE presents this panel discussion about immigration. The prominence of Mormons in Utah gives immigration discussions a particular flavor here, with Mormons represented on different sides of the issue. Panelists will discuss how their LDS background shapes their personal views and political actions on immigration and how we can find common ground and constructive approaches to address this subject.

TREASURES OF HEAVEN ON EARTH: THE IMPACT OF MORMONISM’S MISSING, REPUDIATED, REBUILT, AND MUSEUM-SEQUESTERED ARTIFACTS

Abstract

A supremely important artifact to early Christians was the cross; slivers of it were cherished as the most valuable of relics. Over time, the cross has been repudiated by Latter-day Saints, who instead mark their most sacred buildings with a statue of Moroni.

Arguably the most important artifact of Mormonism, the object on which its existence rests, is missing. We do not have the Golden Plates, and only a dozen men claimed having seen them (a servant woman who claimed Moroni showed her the plates was never taken seriously). Valuable because of their material, their age, and their content, the Golden Plates have been replaced by a mass-produced book valuable because of its content. Additional artifacts key to the Book of Mormon’s translation, the Urim and Thummim, are also missing.

Other artifacts and aspects of Mormon material culture were lost or abandoned as the Saints migrated from place to place. In recent years, however, some of these historical edifices have been rebuilt. A temple was constructed on the site of the first Nauvoo Temple; its exterior matches the original, though the interior does not. Historic Kirtland is a meticulous reconstruction of a community that includes a sawmill, a store, a schoolhouse, and an inn.

And while some Latter-day Saints retain and cherish family heirlooms and personal items so imbued with spiritual significance—peep stones, or handkerchiefs or canes blessed with the power to heal—that they become religious artifacts, such items are increasingly sequestered in museums.

What do these missing, rebuilt, repudiated, or sequestered artifacts mean to a people profoundly interested in documenting and preserving their material culture? How is meaning created by these objects? How do we understand the various meanings when the objects we've created are damaged by moth or rust, stolen by thieves, or lost? How does meaning shift when those objects are replaced by something else—leather-bound and gilt-edged Books of Mormon replacing the Golden Plates, for instance, or a modern LDS temple built on the site of a much older and very different building? How do these treasures of heaven on earth help us understand both heaven and earth?

He has served in the Community of Christ Council of Twelve Apostles since 1994. His research projects include a book on the Book of Mormon. He will speak about the absence of the Gold Plates.

DR. D. MICHAEL QUINN has a PhD in history from Yale University and is the author of more than 80 articles and several award-winning books about Mormon history. He will speak about personal artifacts and items with religious significance and their common fate of ending up in museums, sequestered away from the use that made them valued objects to begin with.

MICHAEL G. REED has an MA in liberal arts from Cal State Sacramento and has been accepted into the joint PhD program in Christian history at the Graduate Theological Union/UC Berkeley. A revision and expansion of his MA thesis, titled Banishing the Cross: The Emergence of a Mormon Taboo, is forthcoming from John Whitmer Books in 2011. He will speak about the cross as a repudiated artifact in Mormon iconography.

ALLEN ROBERTS is an award-winning architect specializing in historical restoration. His firm, CRSA, is known for its commitment to green building. He is a co-founder of SUNSTONE magazine. He will speak about the re-creation of LDS historical buildings.

Room BALLROOM A (third floor)
AFTER PARTY ~10:30 PM

Join us for a SYMPOSIUM AFTER PARTY at the home of Mary Ellen Robertson and Michael J. Stevens. We’ll need to clean up after the closing banquet, so the festivities will start around 10:30 pm (or earlier if partygoers are willing to help us pack up Sunstone gear).

1522 E. 33rd Street, Ogden, 84404

SUNDAY 7 AUGUST, 10:00 AM

The Community of Christ will be holding a worship service at the Ogden Congregation on 7 August 2011, the Sunday morning following the symposium. All are invited to attend!

Services will be held at the Community of Christ chapel, located at 848 7th Street, Ogden.

10:00 AM—Sunday School

11:00 AM—Sacrament Service

Elder Dale E. Luffman, Quorum of the Twelve Apostles, will be speaking.

Lunch will be served following the services.
